Council Approves Uptown Redeveloper, Garage

$5.1 Million Budget Passes

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON
Kingston Common Council met Friday night and unanimously approved three pieces of major legislation: the 1970 budget, the first redeveloper in the uptown urban renewal project and a parking garage on North Front Street.

The budget was $5,187,462, basically the same one presented by Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan at his Dec. 29, 1969 public hearing and forwarded to the Common Council by Mayor Francis R. Koenig on Jan. 6. The tax rate is the same proposed by Garraghan—$62 per $1,000 of assessed valuation.

The first redeveloper uptown will be Basement Realty Inc. who will develop a parcel of land known as the "Goodyear Property" on North Front Street. The urban renewal agency sent a communication to the Common Council approving Basement Realty as a qualified developer. The land will be sold by the agency to the developers for $24,000. It was also noted in the communication that Basement Realty has been approved as a developer by state and federal urban renewal agencies. A public hearing is expected to be held by the urban renewal agency on Feb. 9 at which time Basement Realty representatives will outline their plans for the redevelopment of the Good-year property.

The Council also voted to approve D. Fortunato Inc. of Floral Park and Albany as the contractor for the proposed parking garage on North Front Street. Fortunato bid $700,000 for a 360-car garage.

The choice was between Fortunato and Conrad Building Systems of New York City for the contract. Conrad had bid $533,990 for a 301-car garage. Although the vote was unanimous there was apparently some confusion on the way the resolution was presented to the Council. Alderman Clifford G. Sinsabaugh (D-10th Ward), read a resolution from his desk calling for the approval of the garage. The resolution was seconded by Alderman Edward Norton (D-11th Ward) and approved by a 13-0 vote.

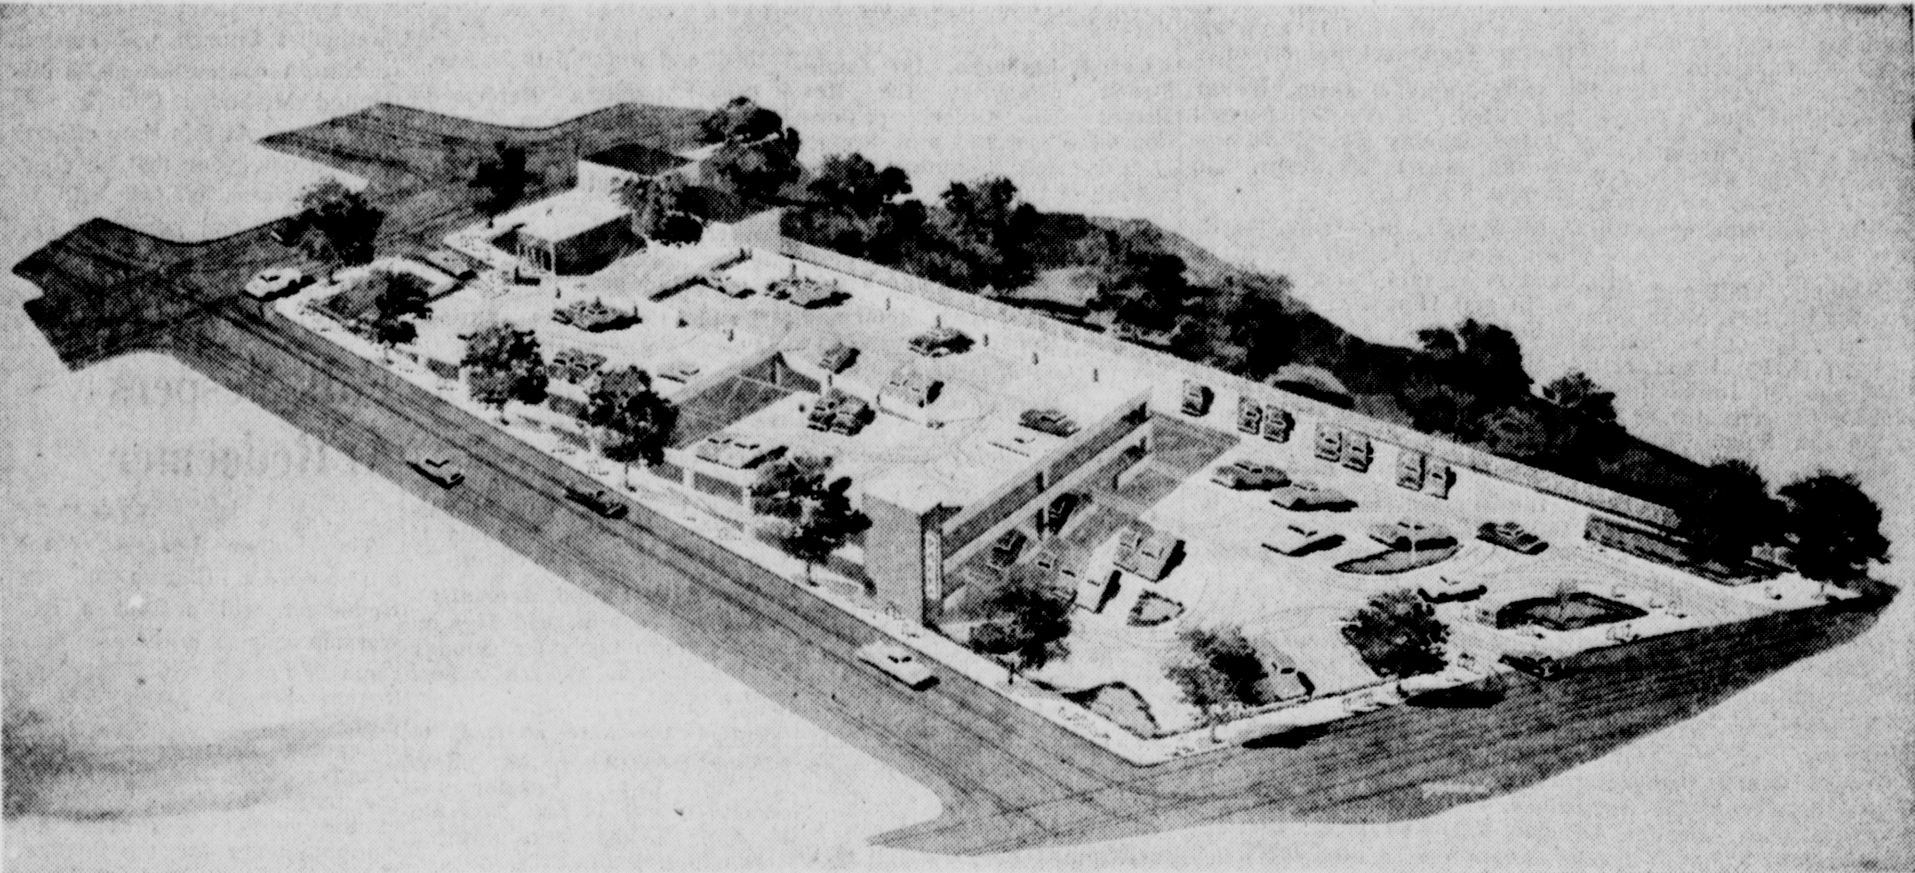

Normally, the Council votes twice on an issue, the first time to accept the report of the committee sponsoring the legislation, the second time to actually approve the legislation.

Mrs. Florence S. Ludlow (D-Fourth Ward), said she thought she was voting to accept the committee's report on the garage for further council action. "I am in favor of the Conrad garage," she told The Freeman after the meeting. "I have been opposed to the Fortunato garage and I have made my position clear to other members of the Council. I was not aware that Alderman Sinsabaugh was offering legislation for the approval of the Fortunato garage. I misunderstood. I would have voted against it."

Debate on the budget was limited. Alderman John Machione (R-Second Ward), leader of the Republican minority in the Council, noted that city expenditures have gone up considerably and offered little opposition to the budget. He said that he hoped that with careful management the mayor could further reduce taxes next year.

The Council adjourned after giving a standing ovation to outgoing City Clerk Thomas R. Lyle. Lyle will be replaced by Louis DeCicco on Feb. 1.

Maintaining the Status Quo Could Be Expensive

WE RAN into the Freeman's most recent retiree, Charlie Diers, down at Lou Thompson's Triangle Tavern on Delaware Avenue Wednesday night.

Charlie, like most people in his age group, seems to enjoy looking back, way back, like 60 years ago. Charlie of course, isn't that old but he had a little booklet with him that was. It was a combination steamship schedule and tourist guide of Kingston, "The gateway to the Catskills," printed in 1909.

It made for interesting reading, Kingston the way it used to be. A lot of things have changed. Some things haven't. Like the population. It was 26,000 in 1909. It was slightly over 29,000 in 1960. It will probably be about 27,500 when the 1970 census figures are in.

Kingston, for various reasons, not the least, a deliberate policy of maintaining the status quo, has not grown in the past 60 years.

Now that may not be all bad. Witness the honky tonk effect of Rt. 9W north of the city line. Bars and gas stations do not a pretty scene make.

A nice quiet little town that doesn't change from year to year can be desirable, to a point.

Cost of maintaining that nice quiet little town that never changes is the point. We seem to have reached the point.

Witness city spending in the last six years, 1965 through 1970. For the first three years, 1965, 1966 and 1967, it cost about $10,630,000. The total cost for the next three years, including 1970, adds up to $14,073,000.

The sales tax in 1968 eased the burden somewhat but that extra million dollars is already an integral part of the budget. Imagine the city without the sales tax. A tax hike of $25 per thousand.

City Beat

By HUGH REYNOLDS
Freeman City Hall Reporter

It cost more than $19 million in the past five years to run the city of Kingston. It might be fair to ask what we got for that $19 million. We see new street lights on Broadway, a few new fire trucks, some new police cars, a new ballpark at Block Park and a few new basketball courts around.

Are we just spending money year after year? Are we merely maintaining the status quo instead of improving the city?

There is a growing awareness at city hall these days that the answer to those questions is "yes." It is difficult to come up with any other answer.

The tool for change is the city government, but the city government, under its present setup, can do little more than it has for the past 60 years.

It's basically a matter of time. One does not draw up 10-year plans with two-year legislative bodies. We have been informed that under the present city charter, one Common Council is not responsible for carrying out the programs of its predecessor.

For instance, Mayor Garraghan, before he went out of office, recommended that the city embark on a vehicle replacement plan for the Department of Public Works.

It was estimated that it would take $65,000 a year for 10 years to get the city to the point where every piece of equipment would be replaced every 5 years. Garraghan knows what he's talking about. He's in the oil delivery business.

The 1969 Common Council thought it was a good idea. Apparently, Mayor Koenig and the new Council think it is a good idea. But if some mayor in the future needs a fast $65,000 the equipment replacement plan goes out the window.

There is no long range planning. The city government reacts to crisis.

As we said, there is a growing awareness of these problems at city hall, these days. Mayor Koenig's call for charter revisions isn't just idle chatter.

Suggestions include a charter that would set up at least five-year plans for major city improvement such as sewers and street reconstruction. The new charter would probably increase the mayor's term of office from its present two years to three or four years. The same goes for the aldermen.

In the end it's a matter of simple arithmetic. The six million dollar budget is two years away. The ten million dollar budget will come in this decade. There's a limit to how much 27,500 people can pay.

TAKE IT EASY, BUDDY — City Clerk Thomas R. (Buddy) Lyle ended his four-year career at city hall yesterday.

We thought we detected a tear in his eye. After all, look what Lyle's giving up.

No longer will he have to sit through the invigorating debate at a Democratic caucus during the Common Council meetings. "Damn Republicans."

He won't have to take telephone harangues from newsmen anymore. "Why didn't you tell us the pigeons ate city hall in June of 1968?"

He won't have to issue dog licenses to irate parents anymore. "That cheap tag just doesn't go with my Poopsie's mink earmuffs."

He won't have to issue marriage licenses anymore. "Whatyuh mean, blood tests?"

He won't get phone calls from city officials at 2:30 in the morning. "Hey Buddy, we're having a blast. Come on over. What do you mean I woke up the wife, six kids and the dog. Bring them too."

Lyle's going to miss all that? Sure he is.

Egyptian Planes Penetrate

By United Press International

Egyptian bombers with fighter escorts attacked three points in the Israeli-occupied Sinai Peninsula today following a raid on the region's largest town a few hours earlier in one of Egypt's deepest penetrations since the 1967 war.

Cairo Radio said the jets struck Israeli artillery and ammunition depots at East Kibrit and Al-Shat in the southern sector of the Suez Canal.

The Egyptians said fires broke out after the explosions and could be seen on the Egyptian west bank of the canal.

Israeli troops killed 10 Arab guerrillas in a clash early today near the biblical sin city of Sodom south of the Eved Sea, a Tel Aviv spokesman said. It was near the same area where an Israeli tank column swept across the Jordanian border last Tuesday in a 20-hour anti-guerrilla operation.

Israel acknowledged both the raids on the southern sector of the canal and an earlier attack on El Arish, a city of 30,000 persons on the Mediterranean Coast 120 miles east of the Suez Canal. El Arish contains the Israeli military government headquarters.

The latest Egyptian attacks were on an outpost near Duer Suwar and an installation near the "kilometer 145 zone" of the canal's southern sector, a Tel Aviv spokesman said.

Israel said the raid on El Arish damaged only houses and wounded a man and a child.

Israel said the Egyptian bombs shattered three Arab homes and smashed windows of many other houses.

Egypt's air strike, carried out around midnight followed two previous air raids Friday, one against Israeli troops occupying parts of Shadwan Island and another against two Israeli positions, one of them opposite Ismailia on the Suez Canal east bank and the other deep in Sinai.

In Tel Aviv, Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan said Friday night Israel's 32-hour takeover of Shadwan Island at the Gulf of Suez entrance was part of a campaign to disrupt Egyptian military preparedness.

Dayan said it was part of a series of commando operations which in the past included Israeli strikes near the Suez Canal and in Southern Egypt.

Israeli spokesmen said they blew up all military installations on Shadwan and brought back to Israel 62 Egyptian commandos and sailors as well as prisoners along with a British-made radar station.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — By a 73 to 1 vote, the Senate has passed a tough anticrime bill designed to crack down on the Mafia. But two respected constitutional lawyers in the House plan to hold it up for close scrutiny.

Still responding to the political potency of the crime issue—and to a State of the Union message prod from President Nixon—the Senate today turned to another anticrime measure, the administration-backed bill reducing the penalties for using or possessing marijuana.

Passage could come before the end of today's unusual Saturday session. Under the bill, a person convicted for the first time of possessing marijuana, heroin or any other outlawed drug could be jailed for no more than one year—instead of the two to 10 years now provided by law.

Attorney General John N. Mitchell said the Senate-passed Organized Crime Control Act of 1969 is "one of the most imaginative and comprehensive proposals to combat organized crime ever introduced into the Congress."

In the House, Reps. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., and William M. McCulloch, R-Ohio, the ranking Democrat and Republican on the Judiciary Committee, said they wanted to take a close look at the Senate bill on organized crime at hearings starting Feb. 18.

Cong Gunners Shell 29 Allied Positions

SAIGON (UPI)—Viet Cong and North Vietnamese gunners shelled 29 Allied posts in stepped up attacks that killed one American and wounded two others, military spokesmen said today. Nine of the barrages caused damage.

Reports of the increased overnight bombardments throughout South Vietnam came as military spokesmen told of more U.S. B52 raids in the A Shau Valley, where the Communists are reported building up for a lunar new year offensive.

Military communiques said the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese had shelled more than 130 points in South Vietnam since Wednesday. The attacks killed four Americans altogether and wounded 36 others.

In the increased attacks, the strategic Tay Ninh Province bordering Cambodia was the center of much of the shelling, and a light machine gun.

Communist mortar teams pounded night defensive positions of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division and 25th Infantry Division around Tay Ninh City, 55 miles northwest of Saigon.

Patrolling troops of the U.S. 4th Infantry Division Friday uncovered a Communist arms cache near the Central Highlands city of An Khe. It held nine mortars, a recoilless rifle, 10 rocket grenade launchers and a light machine gun.

Woman Accused of Defacing American Flag

WOODSTOCK: Miss St. John was released on $500 bail, and will appear before Judge Myers at 7 p.m. Wednesday.

Margaret St. John, of 180 Tinker Street, was allegedly walking about the town with an American flag in place of trousers, "wrapped around like a diaper," according to a Sheriff's Department spokesman.

In addition, she wore a jacket. She was arrested about 2 a.m. on a complaint by Officer Woven of the Woodstock constabulary, and taken before Judge James R. Myers.

Her reason given, according to the judge, for draping herself in the flag was "out of love."

Defendant's Mother Testifies at Trial

KINGSTON: The trial of Thomas Ocker of Kingston, charged with criminally selling hashish, three counts, went into its third day of testimony in County Court with his mother, Mrs. Dorothy Ocker taking the witness stand in his defense.

The case, being heard before Judge Raymond J. Mino, began Wednesday with the selection of a jury.

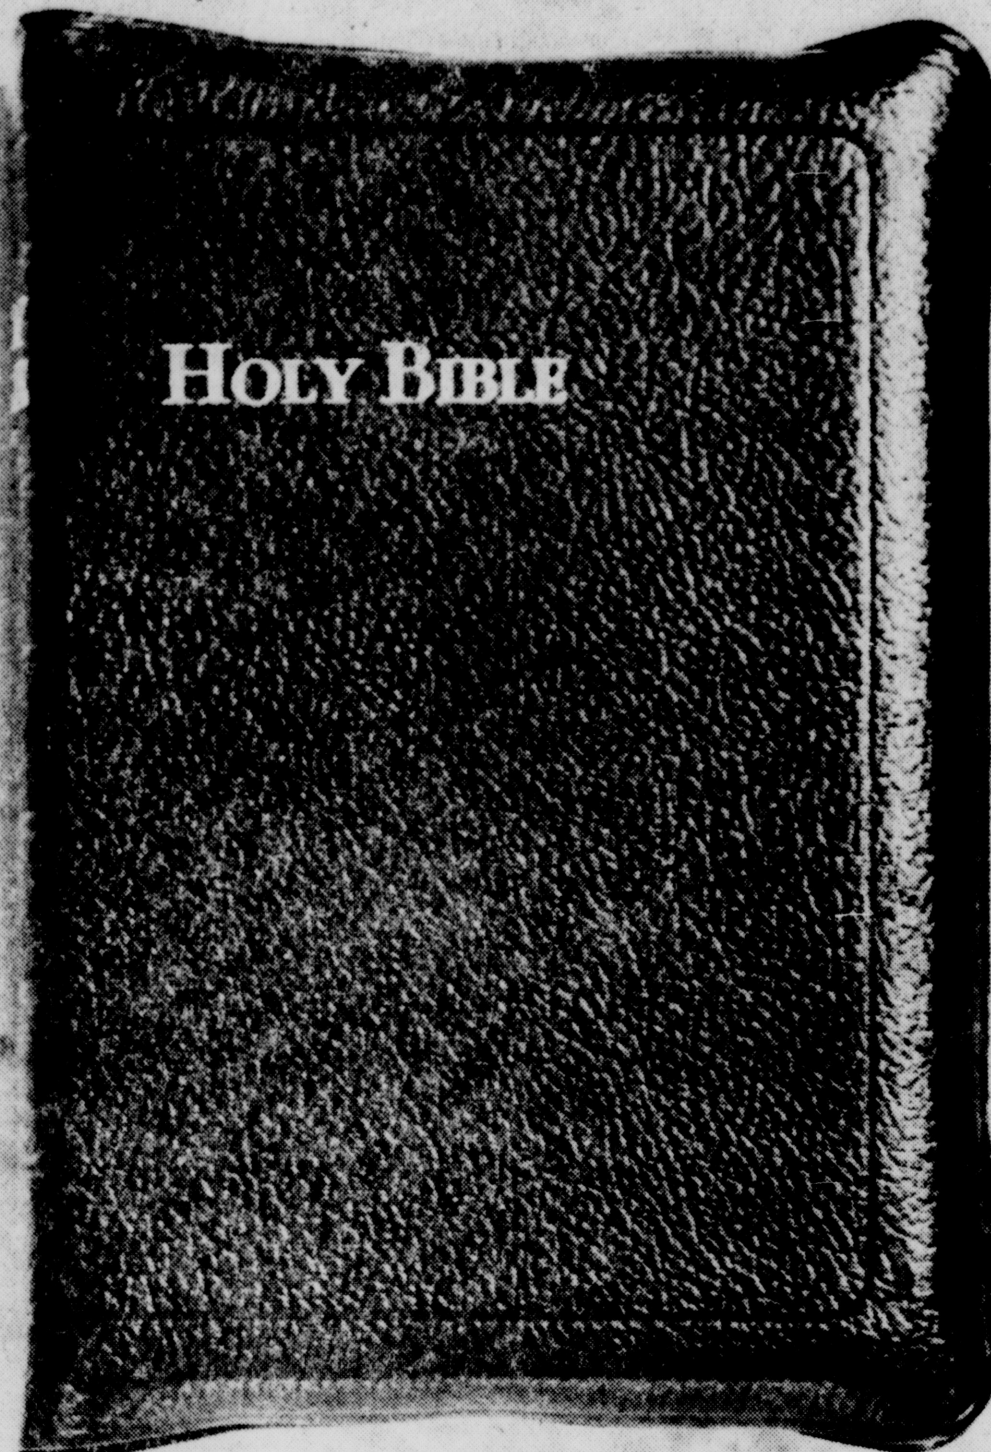

The People presented its case Thursday with assistant district attorney Joseph Traficanti prosecuting.

Traficanti called three witnesses. Santo Ledestre, undercover agent for the New York State Police who testified that he made a purchase of two day-packs of hashish from Ocker for $10 in front of the Park Diner on Jan. 7, 1969. Gerald Zappulo, the second witness, an investigator for the State Police, testified that Ledestre turned over the purchased material to him at 11 p.m., and chemist Arthur G. Kemnitz testified that the same material tested in the State Police Laboratory was hashish.

The defense, opening Friday with Frank Martocci representing Ocker, calling Mrs. Ocker. She testified that her son was at home in their apartment on Broadway at the time the incident is alleged to have taken place. Mrs. Ocker has since moved away from Kingston.

It was expected that the jury would not be charged until Monday.

Do You Understand The Bible?

While the Bible remains the world's best seller year after year, millions within reach of the sacred volume lack knowledge of its teachings.

• Why?

Some are confused over religious division. Others are convinced they are unable to understand the Bible. It should be emphasized that the Bible was written for common folks, not just ministers or professional theologians. Finders of Bible truth must have (1) honest hearts, (2) open minds, and (3) a desire for the truth only. A casual acquaintance with certain Bible facts is not enough. The truth-seeker must learn how to "rightly divide the word of truth." (2 Timothy 2:15).

Now, in the privacy of your own home, you can enjoy an organized and systematic series of fundamental Bible lessons designed to increase your knowledge, understanding, and appreciation of the Book of books.

The correspondence course is free . . . non-sectarian . . . and your own Bible will be the only textbook.

Your life will be blessed and spiritually enriched for undertaking this home study course of the Bible—described as a "lamp" unto our feet and a "light" unto our pathway (Psalms 119:105). Enroll today by mailing your request to the address below. All lessons will be by correspondence only.

This year's delegates to the Fruit Show are Kathleen Steltz of Saugerties, Jeffrey Robinson of Kingston, Mindy Kotler of Kingston, Rosalie McIntosh of New Paltz, Cynthia Vogt of Hurley and Paula Robinson of Kingston. These young people won placement for the fruit show demonstrations at their 4-H Demonstration Day held in Kingston High School.

Twelve counties will be represented at the show this year. The 4-H members will show how to use fruits, especially apples, in a variety of ways. It was necessary for them to organize their materials, show how the recipe was made and give a talk during their presentation. To enter the competition each youth had to know the food value of the ingredients and the purpose of each.

The New York State Horticultural Society will sponsor a Luncheon for the participants to be held at the Holiday Inn Restaurant, Thomas La Mont, Secretary of the New York State Horticulture Society, and Rockwood Berry, New York-New England Apple Institute, will present gifts to the 4-H members during the luncheon and announce the winner of the Apple Pie Bake-Off.

All six members of the 4-H demonstration team have made their recipes available to the Women's Department of the Freeman. They are published here for your enjoyment.

Hints from Heloise

Letter of Laughter

Dear Heloise:
I asked my boss the other day how he got so smart. His answer was... he didn't, but finally got WISE.

O.H.

Dear Heloise:
If you knit a lot, you know how you always have leftover yarn.

Well I use the darker leftover yarn for "dust cloths." I knit a swatch approximately 10 inches x 18 inches alternating several colors. You can use the stockinet stitch or if you prefer just the plain old garter stitch.

The knit dust cloth picks up the dust and holds it. When finished dusting just shake the cloth out real well and it's ready for another use.

It can be handwashed and reshaped to size when drying. Opal Collier

Dear Heloise:
I have a hint I'd like to pass on to the ladies.

To clean children's plush toys, I wait until there's snow on the ground. Just rub the snow in vigorously, then dry and brush.

Mrs. V.A. Vorman

You're 100 per cent right! The Chinese clean their rugs this way, too. They put snow on them, then sweep it off... and the rugs don't get water-soaked.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, JANUARY 24, 1970

Philharmonic Society

If the residents of the Ulster-Dutchess-Orange County area wish the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Society to continue improving and bolstering the cultural environment, they have the opportunity to do so during the current sustaining fund drive.

The financial drive, which is being conducted simultaneously in the three counties, has $75,000 as its goal. Of this amount, Ulster County is responsible for $20,000.

The alacrity of response by some 125 volunteers to share in the work of meeting Ulster's commitment augurs well for the success of the financial campaign. The cultural growth here is further demonstrated in the support of the philharmonic by various county groups which have staged concerts, sales, dances and luncheons to swell the fund. This valley cultural treasure should involve greater support from industries so that it will grow to greater heights.

It is well to remember that no symphony orchestra in the world is self-supporting. If tickets were priced to cover total costs, few people could afford to attend. The symphony orchestra is for the benefit of the entire community. Its real object is to provide good music for more people.

The Orchestra in Progress gives area musicians the opportunity to learn the techniques of orchestral playing, then has them perform in admission-free concerts. In-School Concerts bring the finest music of the world to children and make it educational as well as entertaining. These and other endeavors of the Philharmonic Society benefit from the funds which must be secured by a sustaining fund drive.

Musical events in this area have been supported by music lovers. Without this support, music would not be where it stands here today. The opportunities for school children have heightened the interest. Generally speaking, music has become a part of our community life.

The high elevation of musical culture in this area is the result of the three counties in the valley merging as a unit in support of the philharmonic.

Any city or area that provides its people with the beauties of symphonic concerts is a good place in which to live.

Standing Up to Crises

The first non-denominational Sunday service for 1970 in the East Room of the White House found Dr. Norman Vincent Peale of New York's Marble Collegiate Church in the pulpit. He spoke on two subjects, which deserve wider circulation: dealing with tension and standing up to crises.

St. Vitus should be the patron saint of this country, Dr. Peale said, because "You can shake yourself to pieces with the tensions that beset this country." Pointing out that 15 million sleeping tablets are consumed in this country every night, he added, jocularly, "People are so nervous, you can hardly put them to sleep in church any more."

But it was on the subject of standing up to crises that Dr. Peale moved his hearers most. When he was sent to Vietnam by the President, Dr. Peale visited military hospitals. He was impressed with the quality of courage he found there among the wounded Americans. "When I sat on those beds and talked to those boys and asked, 'How are you?' never once did anyone say anything except, 'I feel fine . . . the good Lord is on my side.'"

Dr. Peale is right. You won't find whiners and cop-outers among the spiritually and normally strong who put their faith in God. This country needs such crises standers-uppers a thousand times more than we do the whole but weak soul who drag down, instead of lift up, morale. You can show your convictions by giving preferential positions to the war disabled, regardless of race or creed. They stand up to their crises. They'll stand up to yours.

David Lawrence Says World Message to Carry More Hope, Optimism

WASHINGTON — President Nixon has decided wisely that he will have a separate address on the "State of the World" about two weeks after he delivers to Congress his message on the "State of the Union."

For not only are the two subjects intertwined through the dependence of domestic appropriations on the size of expenses incurred in defense commitments abroad, but the policies of the United States cannot be defined without taking into account international as well as national questions. The state of the world today, fortunately, is much better than it has been for several years. The basic problems have not been resolved, but there is more hope and a more optimistic atmosphere about the approach to them than has been witnessed in a decade.

No concrete agreement to terminate the Vietnam war has been reached, but a change is to be noted in the attitude of all sides toward finding some means of living with this problem. The communist countries which have been supporting North Vietnam now are convinced that the United States, although gradually withdrawing its forces, is prepared to help defend South Vietnam again if a crisis should develop. This doesn't necessarily involve the sending in of troops. For the "Vietnamization" of the war has brought about the build-up of a substantial military force which can defend South Vietnam provided it has the supplies and the technical advisers from the United States.

and these can be made available without committing American manpower.

As Southeast Asia approaches an era of stability, there is a significant attempt being made to find some sort of understanding between the United States and Red China, which has played an influential part in encouraging the North Vietnamese. The Nixon administration has evidently determined that it will make every effort to convince the Peking regime of the desire of the United States to establish friendly relations with mainland China, though at the same time retaining its present intimacy with the Nationalist Chinese on Formosa.

There are, to be sure, a great number of factors involved in stabilizing the Far East. The United States is anxious to see the Nationalist Chinese continue to develop Formosa, but some kind of coalition ultimately with the Red Chinese leaders on the mainland is a possibility. If China could become once more a friend of the United States, this would change the entire situation in the Pacific from one of uncertainty to stability. The 800,000,000 people of China could have a better standard of living, and the smaller countries of Asia, free of fear, would be able to improve their domestic situation as well as trade relations throughout the world.

Cooperation on the economic side and better relations with Red China would do much to promote the cause of peace in the entire Pacific area. Peace in Asia could save the United States a great deal of money annually in its defense program.

Perhaps the most significant factor in Asia is the development of an entente between Japan and the United States. The visit of the Japanese premier to this country a few weeks ago and recent conferences have indicated clearly that the United States favors a closer working arrangement with the Japanese for the improvement of the economic welfare of the peoples of the Asian continent.

As to the rest of the world, the United States has some vital problems to solve in Europe. The future of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization is uncertain. The Washington government wants to withdraw as many troops as it can from Europe and place on the free nations of Western Europe the responsibility for their own defense. While there is a mobile American fleet and an adequate supply of missiles that can be fired from submarines, the western countries need have little fear of nuclear war. This kind of warfare could be deterred by the presence of the American fleet in the Mediterranean and adjacent waters of Western Europe.

Latin America is relatively peaceful. Internal conditions in many countries are not satisfactory, but the United States is working harder to contribute to better economic progress there.

On the whole, the message on the "State of the World" can carry within it more optimism today than has been possible in the past decade.

Nixon Relentless in Aim To Cut Defense Spending

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The cut in military spending proposed in the new 1971 federal budget will not satisfy those critics who are demanding slashes up to $1 billion. But it will be substantial, and it could approach half that figure.

Though you would never know it from listening to some people, the Nixon administration has been on a downward defense spending course almost from the outset.

According to a comprehensive military budget report in the weekly National Journal, former President Johnson's adjusted proposal for defense spending in the current 1970 fiscal year was $77.7 billion. President Nixon's April 15 revisions of the budget pared this figure by $2.5 billion to $75.2 billion.

On Aug. 21, Defense Secretary Laird announced that additional cuts of $3 billion would be made in the current year. He indicated half of this sum would be saved through base closings, personnel cutbacks, retirement of ships and reduced military flight training.

When Congress finally finished work on the bill for military outlays in the 1970 fiscal year, it had cut $5.6 billion off Nixon's original April estimate. But that figure was just $2.6 billion below the level indicated by Laird in August.

Most of the additional savings will not be made in this current year, as a matter of fact, because the congressional cuts are largely in "new obligatory authority" which gives the Pentagon power to make commitments for future spending.

Laird's most recent statement forecasting a loss of 1,250,000 military and military-connected civilian jobs from mid-1969 to mid-1971 is a clear sign that the President intends to keep resolutely on the downward course. It presumes more big troop withdrawals from Vietnam.

The need to curb still-spiraling inflation is the dominant driving force at work. Despite Laird's presumed hawkishness, this battlewise politician's conservative instincts in the domestic arena really do put him in league with the President in the inflation struggle.

The gradual winding down of our combat role in the Vietnam war and the cautious lowering of our "profile" elsewhere in the world are declared Nixon policies which fit into the inflation fight. Some analysts here argue, indeed, that the effort to cool the economy is a "forcing factor" which will give an inescapable reality to Nixon's Guam doctrine of the lowered profile.

cutbacks presently foreseen in Vietnam and elsewhere.

Former Budget Director Charles Schultze, writing in the magazine, "The Public Interest," contends that by fiscal 1974, non-Vietnam military spending will have soared nearly $20 billion above the levels of fiscal 1969.

He sees this rise coming from already authorized or predictable boosts in pay for military personnel and Defense Department civilian employees, cost escalation from inflation, and the future spending consequences of developing weapons systems like ABM, the new Poseidon missiles for Polaris nuclear submarines, a proposed new continental air-defense system and so on.

In Schultze's judgment, these almost certain added outlays will closely balance any projected savings from the Vietnam war, even assuming a virtual close-out of our role there. His estimate of our Vietnam spending at around $17 billion to $20 billion annually is lower than some calculations.

Schultze makes the point that Vietnam war costs tend to be inflated by those who assign to the war all charges affecting fleet task forces in the Gulf of Tonkin and B-52 bombing missions. If the war ended, regular naval and air units still would be costing money.

Jack Anderson Says Million Dollars Worth of Food Stamps Stolen From Government

WASHINGTON — An astonishing $1 million worth of government food stamps, intended for the poor, have been stolen from distribution centers in 11 states in recent months by professional safecrackers.

Federal investigators are convinced the stolen coupons are being sold for cash through middlemen who operate with the cooperation of grocery store owners and, possibly, even bank officials.

Poor people use the stamps to buy food at grocery stores which can redeem them for cash at banks. The banks are then reimbursed by the government.

Although the Agriculture Department is keeping mum about the wave of thefts, this column learned that over $600,000 worth of the stamps have been stolen in West Virginia alone.

The largest single burglary occurred in Charleston, where thieves made off with $300,000 worth of food coupons after breaking into a safe in a distribution office. Two separate break-ins at a stamp office in the northern part of the state resulted in a loss of more than $150,000.

Other major heists occurred at Albuquerque, N.M., where $100,000 worth of stamps were stolen several weeks ago and at Opelousa, La., where thieves got $67,000 worth.

A confidential Agriculture Department report lists Arkansas, Wisconsin, Michigan, Washington, Iowa, Minnesota, Maryland and Illinois as the other states where stamps have been stolen.

A special investigating unit has been set up by the Agriculture Department to probe the thefts, which officials fear may increase with the rise in federal allotments for the food stamp program. So far, five persons have been arrested and charged with acting as "fences" in the sale of the coupons.

A special memorandum has been sent to the state agencies responsible for distributing the stamps. It urges that only small quantities be kept at the offices where the coupons are issued.

The department has also arranged to have the stamps printed with serial numbers to make their illegal sale more difficult.

Drama of the Deaf Buried in the fine print of the veto-threatened, $19.7 billion Health, Education, and Welfare appropriations bill is some poignant human drama.

If President Nixon carries out his threat to kill the bill, he will also kill the hopes and dreams of thousands of scientists and students, of the needy and neglected who are counting on the bill for funds.

Among them are 1,000 students at Washington's Gallaudet College, the only liberal arts college in the world which exists solely to educate the deaf. They come from 38 states and 16 foreign countries to obtain an education they can get at no other institution.

For 106 years, these handicapped students have moved around their campus freely, unharmed and harming no one. But now their silent world is haunted by a terrible new fear.

The Gallaudet campus is located on 92 formerly tranquil acres in northeast Washington. But the ghetto has slowly grown up around the school, and its deaf students have become the tragic victims of rampaging crime.

They are particularly vulnerable to ghetto thugs who are well aware of their victims' disabilities. For the students cannot hear approaching attackers; nor, in most cases, can they cry for help.

Over 50 robberies, assaults and other crimes have been committed against Gallaudet students since late summer. Two attempted rapes took place in one evening. On September 9, one girl was attacked in a restroom, and another was assaulted in front of her dormitory. The latter was picked up and bodily carried for 300 yards, where she was dumped behind a mound of dirt.

On another occasion, a group of deaf girl students were punched and kicked by ghetto ruffians.

Gallaudet College, therefore, is in desperate need of fences, lights and security guards to protect those who cannot protect themselves. Only seven guards now patrol the campus. School officials would like to hire at least 14 more.

For these purposes, the college has asked the federal government for $315,000 — a small sum by today's standards. But their meager request may be lost in the $19.7 billion bill that President Nixon is threatening to veto.

And the President may not know it, but one of the defenseless students at Gallaudet who is depending on him is his own cousin — Patricia Marshburn.

Candy Cigarette Peril
"Caution: Candy cigarettes may be hazardous to your children's health."

This will be the next crusade of anti-cigarette battler John F. Banzhaf, who is preparing a petition to the Federal Trade Commission on the subject.

Banzhaf's underdog fight forced the networks to carry anticigarette ads. Now his legal students at George Washington University are polishing the anti-candy-cigarette case.

The suit will ask the FTC to intervene with the Patent Office to kill "L & M" as a trademark. Banzhaf contends that the cigarette companies would have a coughing fit if another company stole their trademarks, but are strangely silent when candy cigarette makers imitate popular brand names and packages.

Since they wink at the candy makers to encourage children just out of teething to think of smoking as pleasant, says Banzhaf, the firms have lost their right to their trademark. The FTC, he will argue, has a duty in such cases because the health of children is at stake.

The government should not be party to schemes to encourage cradlecough or diaper hack, Banzhaf believes.

Henry J. Taylor Says Peking's Powerful Espionage

Able American Ambassador to Poland Walter J. Stoessel Jr., resuming talks with the Red Chinese, is now bearing the full brunt of Peking's powerful—surprisingly powerful—espionage.

Ambassador Stoessel has had a secret preparation for this. In a 4:40 a.m. rush to The Hague police headquarters about a year ago Liao Ho-shu, 46, interim chief of Red China's Netherlands Embassy defected. It was a desperate move. Liao had on him Peking's version of the Gestapo's "KCB" cyanide pill combining concentrated hydrocyanic compounds so powerful that death by suicide is almost instantaneous — even the fumes can kill. And he had previously smuggled his wife and two children out of China through Hong Kong.

Liao's real assignment in The Netherlands was as chief of the Teh Wu section of Peking's Hai-Wai-Tiao Cha Pi international espionage octopus. He had served in The Hague since 1963. The Dutch Security Police (BVD) questioned him at its secluded castle called Hoge Veluwe. We took over Liao shortly thereafter.

Liao's revelations about Peking's Warsaw network are invaluable now. Moreover, Ambassador Stoessel's information is buttressed by three of Liao's Teh Wu colleagues who also defected: Security Officer Chao Fu in Mao's Stockholm Embassy, "Cultural Attache" Tung Chi-ping in the Burundi Embassy, and "Commercial Attache" Miao Chen-pi in the Damascus Embassy.

The Warsaw apparatus concerning Ambassador Stoessel is controlled from Mao's embassy in Bern, Switzerland. This is a heavily guarded, flood-lit mansion and, except for unavoidable official receptions, the Red Chinese Ambassador and his accredited group live in utter seclusion. They total 14 officially, but there are also about 40 other Red Chinese nationals described as chauffeurs, interpreters, cooks, etc. Bern tradesmen are not even allowed to enter the service door. They must deposit what they are delivering at a designated spot on the porch. A series of adjacent houses also function for the Teh Wu.

Much of the contact between Mao's Warsaw Embassy, where Ambassador Stoessel is holding each alternate meeting, and Bern and Peking is by radio. The Red Embassy's roof bristles with a forest of antennae which supply high-frequency transmission around the clock to Peking and Bern and so clutter the air that they cannot be monitored. But the heaviest transmission is by microfilm in the diplomatic pouch. The Red Chinese are using a film that can be successfully developed only in Peking. The usual developing materials wash away the message.

One need for this arises because a diplomatic pouch handcuffed to a courier's wrist is not always secure. The Red Chinese (and the Soviets) have an odorless gas which can endanger couriers. It is easily spured, hits you fast and leaves you unconscious but otherwise unharmed. For example, at a dinner in Odessa, the American Naval, Marine and Air attaches from our Moscow Embassy all were knocked out this way. Their papers and effects were searched before they regained consciousness.

It is public knowledge that foreign service officer Irwin N. Scarbeck of the Warsaw Embassy, compromised by agent Rszula Marie Discher, was tried and convicted in Washington on espionage charges and sent to prison. But a senior U.S. diplomat, never publicly disclosed, was also involved. He was quietly permitted to resign. His trail led back through eight previous posts, all the way from Berlin to Panama to Warsaw, with much evidence that he had been in the Peking or Soviet service a full 18 years.

Four other Warsaw Embassy officials privy to our Red Chinese talks were compromised, and transferred. The attempted entrapment of still another foreign service officer's wife by embarrassing photographs was thwarted. Ten U.S. Marine guards at the Embassy were prey to enticements and all 10 were transferred. Each of the Polish girls thrown at them spoke English, and six were traced to Mao's Teh Wu.

KHS Senior Wins Top Grade At Florida Study Conclave

By JEAN F. DOLAN

KINGSTON A Kingston High School student who arrived in the United States in 1966 not speaking a word of English has brought home top science honors.

Henry Yeh, a native of Taiwan, Republic of China, came to Kingston in August of 1966 when his father H. K. Yeh assumed the post of associate professor in engineering at Ulster County Community College. In these few short years, Henry has adjusted so well to local schools scholastically and socially that he was accepted for attendance at the Eleventh Annual Science Study Program during the Christmas holidays.

Not only did he achieve the distinction of being chosen as one of the 124 top honor science students from the northeast to attend the 11-day sessions but he came away from the conference with the highest marks of any of the cream of the crop participants.

A letter of commendation was received this week at Kingston High School noting the achievement of the 17-year old Yeh who has maintained consistently high marks in his science and mathematics subjects since entering the local school system at J. Watson Bailey Junior High School four years ago.

Elation was the order of the day at KHS. Yeh was very pleased that he did so well. He was happy to be selected for the unique program and set out to do as well as he could to take advantage of the opportunity. Evidence indicates his best is very good indeed.

Yeh credits Gladys Cunningham, JWB guidance counselor with being the "greatest influence" in his American schooling and successes. She was the one who helped him with his English and assisted him in adjusting to customs in local school life.

Vincent Cioni was his first science teacher at J. Watson Bailey. At KHS he took biology classes with Mrs. Elsie Kemble and chemistry with Louis DiPietro. He is currently in physics class taught by Richard Whiston. George W. Washbourne, head of the science department, in speaking of the honor senior's achievements at the Florida Study conference credited both the youth's intense interest and determination and the devotion of the teaching staff with the outstanding honor.

Yeh who resides with his parents at 4 Denver Road, Kingston, brings home to KHS more than scholastic honors. He is an excellent soccer player and has contributed mightily to the outstanding win record of this year's team.

He wants to pursue his scientific leanings and is planning a career in engineering. Yeh has applied to Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute at Troy for admission after graduation from high school.

The Florida study program provided good background in a variety of scientific careers.

Touring through the state of Florida from the Everglades to the NASA Space Center at Cape Kennedy, the students had an opportunity to delve into biological and physical sciences, oceanography, medical science and space science.

Teen Page can only add congratulations to this outstanding science and soccer student. With an impressive start such as this there can only be more plaudits due in the near future.

CONGRATULATIONS — Kingston High School senior Henry Yeh receives congratulations of Dan H. Allen (R) principal and George W. Washbourne (L) head of the science department, for his outstanding achievement at the recent Florida Study Program. Henry received the highest score for written work of any of the select 124 honor students participating in the program. (Freeman photo by Haines)

CYO Starts 3-Point Study on Narcotics

KINGSTON Two very important meetings of the Ulster County Council of CYO Teen Age Clubs will be held this Sunday after weather forced cancellation of previously scheduled sessions.

The council meeting to be chaired by Rita Mary Senor, president will be held 2 p.m. at St. Mary's School, Kingston.

Meeting at the same time will be the Ulster Committee on Narcotics Addiction. Heading the committee for study of narcotics use in the county are the Rev. Paul Sullivan as priest moderator, Mrs. Nancy Buser and Mrs. Therese Pesce. Bridget Lang, Timothy Lackaye, Lynn Nezik and Bill Garzone are teen representatives.

All interested teens and their parents may attend the sessions.

The narcotics addiction committee will work within three particular categories:

- What can be done through education of parents and teens and what kind of educational programs should CYO provide?
- What are the antidotes within the church, CYO structure and community?
- What can be done in a very practical way to solve the particular problems and help individual young people through referral?

Similar committees are at work in nine other counties of the Archdiocese. On completion of their local studies and findings all of the committees will meet jointly for an IMPACT session at CYO's Blair Lodge, Putnam County.

After the committee meeting the Ulster County Council will make plans for the coming year. All teens may attend as well as officers of the parish CYO clubs.

Other items upcoming on the CYO agenda include the annual Teenage Oratorical contests to be held in late February. Juniors and seniors interested in participating may contact CYO County director, Leo A. Schupp for complete information. First prize in the contest is a full four year scholarship.

Ulster County IMPACT sessions at Blair Lodge have been rescheduled to early March as weather also knocked the previous date in November.

Rhinebeck Center Needs Help Of Teens to Get Right Spot

By NANCY SULLIVAN

RHINEBECK Rhinebeck adults, in search of a location for a teen center, are getting little assistance from the teenagers of Rhinebeck.

The Rhinebeck Chamber of Commerce Youth Committee has been trying to locate a desirable place for a teen center—a place that the teenagers could call their own.

James Loftus, chairman of the committee, noted that it was originally the desire of the teens who requested a center and appreciation was shown to the Reformed Church who offered the use of their basement as an interim facility. But a private facility for the youth still remains the primary goal.

The Rev. Willis Jones expressed the opinion that a large number of the local youth do not display any desire for a teen center. He feels that until the opinions of the youth of the community are revealed the adults involved in the program should not attempt to develop any specific program.

Judge Dewitt Gurnell has offered the Town Hall for use as a coffeehouse, but paintings could not be hung or jukeboxes installed. It just wouldn't seem to the teens that it was a place of their own. Many of the restrictions pertaining to setting up a coffeehouse at the Town Hall also apply to the church basement.

Another committee meeting will be held Jan. 31 and perhaps by that time something more definite will be resolved.

Bard Student Gets 1 Out of 3

ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON

Donald Hugh Lee, of Fort Edward, a senior at Bard College, has been elected by the governing body of Kelle College, Oxford, to receive one of three scholarships awarded to graduates of member colleges of the Association of Episcopal Colleges.

Lee, whose name has appeared frequently on the Honor List at Bard, is a 1966 graduate of the Schuylerville, Central School. Lee has majored in languages and music.

Prior to entering college he served as organist at St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Greenwich, where he has returned as temporary organist during vacations and the college's field period. As a sophomore at Bard, he spent his January-February 1968 field period working in community programs, sponsored by St.

Ann's Church in Dorchester, Mass., tutoring inner-city ghetto children.

Lee's scholarship, to read Modern Languages, is for entry to Kelle College in October, 1970. The other two recipients of the scholarships are students at Kenyon College and the University of the South.

KINGSTON

The Kingston Indians Drum and Bugle Corps have added a new section to their bugle line, having just acquired three new concert mellophonium bugles.

Playing these unique instruments will be James Strubel, Warren Jansen, and Daniel Wenderoth. This modern Corps now features every type horn for drum and bugle corps, which also includes soprano, French horn, bass-baritone, euphonium, and contra-bass. Actually, this means that there is a bugle for every conventional band brass horn.

Any young man between the ages of 14 and 20 who is experienced on any horn will find an immediate opening in the Indians, but, there are only two more weeks left. Feb. 1 will be the last day new members will be accepted for the 1970 season. The reason for this deadline is that the new field show must be started by then in order that the Corps can learn it well enough to be ready to compete by June. The Indians will present their new show in Kingston at Dietz Memorial Stadium on the evening of Memorial Day in the Pow Wow Preview.

While the Corps is seeking horn players in particular, any exceptional drummer will be welcome, and that there is room left for some boys in the color guard for boys lacking musical ability. It should be stressed that the boys from Dutchess, Greene, and Ulster County communities are eligible for membership. Uniforms, instruments, professional instruction, and travel is provided by the Indians. This year in addition to appearing throughout the Northeast, they will spend about a week in the Midwest.

To take advantage of this opportunity, young men should apply at Bethany Hall of the Old Dutch Church, 272 Wall Street, Kingston Sunday, Jan. 25 or on Feb. 1, between 1:30 and 4:30 p.m.

Parents of interested boys may attend so that they may meet the Corps administration, and see the Corps rehearse. Inquiries may be sent to the Indians, 19 Joy's Lane, Kingston. Addresses should be included with any requests for further information.

MELLO SECTION — Members of the brand new mellophonium section of the Kingston Indians Drum and Bugle Corps are (L-R) Daniel Wenderoth, James Strubel and Warren Jansen.

Indian Corps Adds New Section, Plans Season

TEEN SCENE: New Films Seen as Profits Without Honor

By LEI

Twenty years ago producers making a film for the young market would capitalize on the fact that teenagers are fiercely loyal to their entertainment idols. All a producer had to do, if he needed to shuffle some swift negotiable to star Eisel Eyalash in anything, including some horror-comic reject such as "I Was a Bloodsucking Bat at a Bikini Party," and enough starry-eyed chicks would squander their baby-sitting pay to handsomely reward him.

Unfortunately, adults gagged on "Rock 'n' Roll Pizza Party" or "Teenaged Werewolf at a Hot-Rod Club," and so did any teenager over the mental age of five. They might go and eyeball the garbage, but they knew they were being exploited, and it didn't help the flavor of the popcorn. By their late teens, most of them were seeking out underground and foreign films in small art theaters, and it was Warhol, Bergman, and other out-of-Hollywood directors who were getting the baby-sitting loot.

The film revolution came about through several factors. A new breed of entertainers, typified by the Beatles, sometimes put their admirers on, but they never condescended to them. These new entertainers—and also new directors and new audiences—had been weaned on television, and were keenly aware of the visual arts. They had been exposed to the best (and worst) of moving picture history, and they were better prepared to make, and appreciate, the talented, the unusual, and the original in films.

Results were memorable. There was "Hard Day's Night," and "Endless Summer," and "Georgie Girl," and "Blow Up." Old codes were challenged, old taboos shattered, old attendance records broken. Nudity came to the screen, along with original concepts of photography, music, and plot. Young directors and producers filmed the message of the young, and did it in the language the young understood. Teenagers came, but so did thoughtful adults. Television sets grew cobwebs, and a whole generation grew up thinking Rock Hudson was where the pilgrims landed.

You'd think the movie industry would welcome the innovators with open arms, wouldn't you? Shower them with awards for bringing new life to the cinematic corpse? Ah no, the flick industry emulated the ostrich, and pretended that these were still the days of the "will she or won't she" plot, the fat soundtrack, and the cast of thousands. The Redgrave sisters watched Katherine Hepburn and Barbra

Streisand cop Oscars, and the words "curious" and "yellow" were not mentioned, except in a whisper.

Among last year's most expressive films are two which are starting the rounds of the neighborhood theaters now—"Alice's Restaurant," which has been playing at Kingston's Community Theater, and "Easy Rider," which is anticipated for the Mayfair.

Both star second-generation entertainers—Arlo Guthrie, of "Restaurant" is the folksinger son of the great folksinger Woody Guthrie and Peter Fonda of "Rider" is the son of actor Peter Fonda. Both pictures offer biting glimpses into America—her beauty and her faults, her motorcycles and her jailbats, her wars and her flowers, her drugs and her skyscrapers and her garbage and her laws. But most of all, into her restless, searching, colorful, young.

Rumors start, as they have before. . . . "Arlo may get a 'Best Actor' nomination. . . ." "They say 'Easy Rider' could cop an Oscar for Best Picture. . . ." The films are probably deserving. But the awards are passed out by the Establishment, and the Establishment's idea of updating the awards is to give one to Sidney Poitier. Not that these two films, and others like them aren't winning awards, but they're winning them at Cannes, in Paris—everywhere except in the film capital of their native land. Films like these will not receive recognition until the Celluloid Revolution filters up to the top ranks of the movie world—or until Hollywood realizes there is more to entertainment than a six-gun and a pneumatic blond.

Of course, they could always beg the question, and give Obie an Oscar for Best Supporting Cop—or—that is, actor. . . .

Pete Koola Stars

Rondout Valley Beats Jinx and Onteora

By MORT LAFFIN

BOICEVILLE A season and a half of frustration ended for Rondout at Onteora's court last night as the Ganders increased their UCAL lead with a 47-40 win over the Indians.

The author of the victory was none other than Pete Koola. All UCAL center for Rondout, Koola, held to nine points for the first three quarters by a tough Onteora defense, literally exploded for 12 of his team's 18-point total in the final period to ice the tilt.

Explode is the word. Both teams had played a conservative, ball control type of game for most of the tilt. On Onteora used a man-to-man defense. Rondout, after finding their press ineffectual for the first few minutes, resorted to the old 2-1-2 zone defense and the lead saw-sawed back and forth.

However, in the fourth period, the Ganders came back with the press and started to fast break as Koola put on a tremendous one-man exhibition. The rangy center began to handle the defense boards, grabbing the caroms, pitching out to his teammates and then streaking the length of the floor to take the lead pass off the fast break, pulling up at the foul line for an unerring jump shot. He would then take off back down the court to be in position for that all-important defensive rebound.

This style of play proved to be the Indians' undoing as they tried to run with the visitors, abandoning their game plan, which had been successful to that point.

Fouls also played an important part of the Ganders' victory as they hit nine of 19 while the losers managed a dismal two-for-18.

George Wallach contributed 12 points to the winning cause, while Ed Mercer finished with 10 for Onteora.

Credit must go to the Indians' defense, however, as they held one half of Rondout's devastating duo, Larry Baney, to one foul point.

Highland Wins

Highland played themselves back into the pennant picture with an 82-67 victory over host New Paltz. The Highlanders got a fine team performance as five men hit double figures. John Crawford led the winners with 22 points, while Perry Monroe hit 17. Brad Hart finished with 19 points for New Highland as they defeated host Waikill, 75-63, despite as 30 point performance by Bill McAfee. Rich Gerentine was high man for the winners with 19 while John Clark added 11.

Marlboro's JVs won, 41-27.

Middletown Holds Off Late Kingston Rally

Bill Bradley Scores 35

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS night as Bradley pumped in a career high of 35 points.

The New York Knickerbockers were taken back by the loss of big Dave DeBusschere from the floor in the third quarter until Bill Bradley put his best foot forward and tipped the scales away from Chicago's decisive fourth quarter burst.

The victory increased the Knicks' lead over the Milwaukee Bucks to five games in the Eastern Division race.

In other NBA action, Philadelphia bombed Baltimore 133-118; Detroit shaded Boston 109-105 in overtime; San Francisco topped Phoenix 138-132 and Los Angeles whipped Seattle 128-100.

Trailing 97-95 early in the fourth quarter, the Knicks outscored Chicago 10-1 behind Bradley and Willis Reed. Three straight goals by Clem Haskins cut the Knicks' lead to 110-109 with 2:45 to play, but Bradley connected for a field goal and two free throws in the 7-0 wrap-up spurt.

Reed scored 30 points and Walt Frazier 28 for New York. Bob Love topped Chicago with 31.

Billy Cunningham and Jim Washington, netted 29 and 25 points, respectively, to trigger Philadelphia's third consecutive victory. Washington canned 11 of 12 shots from the floor.

Bert Yancey Heads Field

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. followed it with a two-under 70 (UPI)—Bert Yancey has a new personality, and along with it a pretty good golf game.

At the halfway point in the $150,000 Bing Crosby national at Cypress Point.

pro-am, Yancey, who smiles a lot and kids with the gallery today, with a two-stroke edge on Jim Wiechers and Bob Goalby, who shot 71 and 72, respectively, also at Spyglass on Friday.

A stroke back of them at four-under 140 are Italian champ Roberto Bernardini, Tom Shaw and Don Massengale, while defending champion George Archer, Arnold Palmer, Miller Barber, Bruce Devlin, Paul Harney and George Knudson were bunched at 141.

Jack Nicklaus, who is making his 1970 tour debut in the Crosby, shot an even-par 72 at Pebble Beach Friday and was in a group tied at 142.

Billy Casper, who started the year by winning the Los Angeles Open, shot a 75 at Cypress and was a bit farther back at 147, while Dale Douglass, winner of last week's Phoenix Open, was even farther back at 152 after shooting a 78 at Pebble.

ARTHUR TOKLE

Tokle Will Direct Rosendale Ski Jump

ROSENDALE Arthur Tokle, three-time National Ski Jumping Champion and two-time Olympian, will direct the ski jumping tournament at Rosendale on Saturday-Sunday, Feb. 7 and 8, it was announced today by the Rosendale Outing Club, sponsor of the two-day ski jumping jamboree on towering Joppenberg Mountain in Rosendale village.

The ski jump on Saturday, Feb. 7 will begin at 1 p.m. and will be part one of the New York State Nordic Combined Championships, which will put together the Saturday ski jumping score with the score of a 15-kilometer cross country race slated for Sunday morning.

The New York State Ski Jumping Championship tournament will be staged on Feb. 8 at 1 p.m.

Colorful Career

One of the most prominent in American ski jumping circles today, Tokle is now coaching the U. S. Eastern Jumping Squad which is competing for berths on the National Team.

The squad will be named after two competitions on the 90-meter hill in Leavenworth, Wash., this weekend.

Immediately after the National team tryouts at Leavenworth, Tokle will come to Rosendale to supervise the grooming of the 70-meter Joppenberg jump in preparation for the tournaments the following weekend.

Tokle's skiing record is an impressive one. He was on the 1952 and 1960 U. S. Olympic teams and on three National Teams to World Championships in 1950, 1954 and 1958. He was the U. S. National Champion in 1951 and 1953 and had a string of firsts and seconds in the international competition from 1945 to 1962.

He won 19 successive ski jumping tournaments at Bear Mountain, a feat never equaled, and in his last season of competition in 1962, at age 40, he won 12 out of 13 tournaments.

With Olympic Team

Tokle has coached the American Ski Jumping Team since his competitive retirement, led the team to the Olympics at Innsbruck and Grenoble and is still on the coaching staff. He will be on loan to the Rosendale Ski Jumping Tournament in his function as technical director from the Great Gorge Ski Area where he is now a Nordic program director.

Under Tokle's direction, modifications are being made on the inrun and takeoff of the towering Joppenberg Mountain slide, with the objective of bettering the 214-foot record now held by Franz Keller of West Germany, set last winter under extremely fast conditions.

Additional parking has been provided by the Rosendale Outing Club at the ski jump site in order to accommodate the large spectator crowd expected.

St. Mary's Tyros Have 7 Straight

KINGSTON St. Mary's Tyros of Kingston routed St. Joseph's of Kingston, 60-12, for their seventh straight win and a two-game lead in CYO competition. Then they edged Regina Coeli of Hyde Park, 26-25, in a non-league game.

Mike Kiernan led St. Mary's with 14 points. Other scorers against St. Joe's: Rich Terpening 5, Vince Yonta 3, Paul Timbrouck 6.

Mercier 6, Steve Wenzel 4, Fran McCloskey 8, Rich Scheff 4, Dom Timbrouck 2, John McGrane 2, Paul Maccaline 2, Caprotti paced St. Joe's with 5.

Kiernan and Timbrouck led with six each against Regina. T. Keating rimmed 15 for the losers. Other scorers: Kiernan 6, DeCicco 2, Terpening 2, Mercier 3, McCloskey 4, Scheff 3, Timbrouck 6.

Werner Kolln Leads Albany Frosh Squad

The State University of Albany freshman basketball team is off to a 7-2 start, one of the best ever at the school, and leading the well-balanced attack is former Kingston High School student, Werner Kolln.

The 6-8, 180 pound forward tops the Dane pups in scoring with an 11.0 average, leads the clubs in field goal accuracy with 41.5 per cent and is second in rebounding average (8.6) and second in assists with 16.

Albany's veteran varsity coach Dick Sauer, now in his 15th year at the university, seldom spends much time praising freshmen, believing they must prove themselves over several years. So, when he recently commented on Kolln, "he's really going to be something, I think," it represented high praise for the 18-year-old cager.

Fast Development

Sauer and Werner's freshman coach, Bob Lewis, have been impressed with his development. He has evolved as the leader of a team on which the five starters are averaging within 3.2 points a game of each other. His playmaking and defense also have drawn compliments, qualities Sauer highly treasures in a ball player.

Werner also is an accomplished golfer and should be one of the top men on the spring's varsity. Freshmen are eligible for varsity play this year first with Sauer, who is also varsity golf coach, was pleased with Kolln's play in several fall tournaments. David Blakey, another Kingston product.

Nassau CC Pins Ulster

KINGSTON Nassau Community College grapplers, who placed second in Region XV last season, pinned a 39-5 defeat on Ulster CC matmen.

But there was one bright spot, and the only one for Coach Mark Cranfield's Senators. Fran Colone, Ulster's crack 126 pounder, pinned his opponent, Tony Fabrizio, in 6 minutes, 11 seconds for his fifth straight victory.

Ulster's Chris Parker (134) and Mike Watson (190) were pin victims in long matches. "Both boys showed up well," said Cranfield.

Ulster is at home tonight meeting Dutchess County in the preliminary to the UCCC-Manhattan

Dear Abby

Disapproves of Women

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

(© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: A married friend of my husband's is going around with the kind of woman you'd expect would openly go with a married man.

This couple dropped in unexpectedly one night. I was polite, but I told my husband that I did not want that woman in my home, so to please tell his friend not to bring her here again.

Well, they dropped by again last night and my husband welcomed them with open arms!

Abby, this woman is rude and ignorant, and spent the entire evening filling her fingernails. The noise of that emery board got on my nerves so severely I finally got up and excused myself.

After they left I told my husband again how I felt, and he said that was "their way of life" and I should accept it. Well, I don't care what they do, or how they live, but I will not "accept" it, and I don't think I should be expected to entertain trash like that in my home. I'd like your opinion.

NEEDS SUPPORT
DEAR NEEDS: If your husband insists upon welcoming into his home people whose unconventional way of life is not acceptable to you, that would seem his "right." It is also your "right" to disapprove and to absent yourself from the company. That ought to tell somebody something: your husband, his friend, and the lady with the emery board.

DEAR ABBY: My mother, who is getting along in years, has taken ill and is now confined to her bed. She lives with me, but my biggest problem is keeping some of her friends away from her.

Mother has always been a very sociable person and she loves company, but some of her friends have more time than brains, and after they've paid mother a visit, it takes her days to recover from the setback.

Mother said that one of her friends told her that if she didn't change doctors she was as good as dead, because her doctor didn't know what he was doing.

Other friends bring her the most depressing news about who else is sick, dying, or dead.

One friend even asked Mother if she would please give her usual donation for the Heart Fund Drive NOW—in case she didn't live until next February!

DEAR ABBY: A friend and I

I am not able to sit in there and monitor every conversation, so what should I do?

DISGUSTED

DEAR DISGUSTED: With "friends" like your mother has, she doesn't need any enemies. You would do your mother a service to quietly tell the offending visitor to bring only cheerful conversation or stay at home.

DEAR ABBY: A friend and I got into a discussion on child-rearing and we disagree on a point we'd like you to settle.

When brothers and sisters get into a fight about something you think the parents should stay out of it and let the kids settle it in their own way? Or should parents intervene and give the children the benefit of their mature judgment?

B AND L

DEAR B AND L: That depends upon the seriousness of the "fight," the age and sex of the "children," and the "way" they propose to settle it. Children should be taught that "might" does not make right, and the one who slugs the hardest isn't necessarily "right." Parents should use their "mature judgment" in determining whether or not they should intervene.

DEAR ABBY: I read in your column recently that "nothing is impossible except getting your name off a mailing list." Well, that isn't impossible either.

For some time my husband and I had been receiving some most undesirable advertising through the mails. I complained to my postmaster, wrote to my congressman, and even wrote to the senders, threatening to sue if they persisted in sending this filth. It didn't help. I continued to receive it.

Finally, I saved up several of their unopened envelopes and put them into a large envelope and mailed them back with no return address. It would have cost them 83 cents for postage, since I put no stamps on the envelope.

Needless to say, I received nothing more from them.

Ann B. Davis Not Changing

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Ann B. Davis is only slightly less wacky than the character of Alice she plays weekly in "The Brady Bunch."

A survivor of three previous series, one a five-year stint with "The Robert Cummings Show," Ann is single and has no intention of changing her status.

"When I come home from work," says she, "I can defrost a TV dinner without some man around the house nagging me for not fixing him a four-course banquet."

The self-sufficient Miss Davis lives in a three-bedroom home in the Hollywood hills overlooking the San Fernando Valley. She has decorated the place with what she calls "Early Accumulative."

Actually, the living room and study are a mixture of soft greens, browns and bright orange. The furniture is overstuffed and comfortable.

There are touches of Oriental art work throughout the house, collected during her three tours of U.S. armed forces bases in Korea and Vietnam.

Most unusual among her treasures are some splendid examples of Eskimo soapstone sculpture.

Ann owns almost an acre of ground, including a swimming pool and garden. She hacks around the latter all winter long, pulling weeds and planting flowers, leaving the lawn mowing to a gardener.

Sharing her quarters are two dogs, a small black poodle named Nit Noy (which, she explains, means "little" in Thailand) and a watchdog mutt she bought from the animal shelter and named Opal.

Rarely Entertains

Because her routine demands much of her time, Ann rarely entertains at home and is infrequently seen in restaurants, discotheques or other celebrity hangouts.

She is so devoted to her profession that during vacations and in the evenings she works with the Los Angeles Repertory Company rehearsing and starring in plays.

"I have to have my foot on stage somewhere or I'm not happy," Ann explains.

It's been that way with Ann since she began her professional career at the Erie Playhouse in Erie, Pa., where she played dozens of different roles. She joined a road company that eventually led to Hollywood.

Her favorite relaxation is to light a log fire in her large brick fireplace on cool evenings and listen to soft music.

Replace Soldiers Accused of Terrorism

'Disciplined' Troops to Biafra

BATH TIME—Volunteer relief worker bathes small Biafran child, as another waits his turn, in makeshift bathtub in Eastern Nigeria. The youngsters are part of some 500 refugees being housed in an unused maternity home after being brought from the secessionist province of Biafra. (UPI CAPLEPHOTO)

LAGOS (UPI) — Nigeria moved its best-disciplined troops into former Biafra today to replace soldiers accused of rape, terrorism and stealing food and drugs meant for starving refugees.

Government sources said Nigeria was unruffled by news that the former Biafran leader Gen. Odumegwu Ojukwu, had been granted political asylum in nearby Ivory Coast. The government sources said Ojukwu was "a spent force."

Official spokesmen, meanwhile, said they were unpleasantly surprised by President Nixon's offer of 40,000 tons of protein-rich food for refugees. "He announced it, we didn't," a spokesman said.

Acknowledges Offer
The government had already acknowledged the U.S. offer of cargo plane load of jeeps and medicines. It began arriving Friday night.

A Lagos newspaper told Secretary of State William P. Rogers to stay out of Nigeria on his tour of Africa next month.

Military commanders were sending elements of the Nigerian 1st division into Biafra to relieve units of the 3rd marine commando division, which took the brunt of the fighting against rebels in Nigeria's victorious final thrust two weeks ago. The spokesman did not give a reason for the troop rotation but the 3rd marines have been accused by foreign newsmen who toured the interior of Biafra, running amok through occupied areas. Reports Troops Desert

The reports said 3rd marine troops had deserted their units, raped white relief workers and civilian refugees, looted and terrorized native Ibo tribe residents and shot up villages. An international observer team returned to Lagos Friday after five days of touring the interior around Owerri, last Biafran stronghold. Brig. Gen. John Drewry of Canada, a member of the observer team, said "We had heard of some nurses who have been raped and are in hiding in the bush." As far as starvation, he said, "I've seen people as fat as pigs in some villages."

Oil Drillers in Nigeria Take Time to Help Biafrans

PORT HARCOURT, Nigeria (AP) — From the squalor of diarrhea-withered babies on the clinic floor, an American oil worker selected a scale-covered infant, washed it gently with surgical soap and handed it to his Scottish buddy for tending. "Here, Teddy," he cautioned. "Watch this one. It may be a gusher."

Foreign oil workers brought to this refinery town to get Nigeria's oil flowing again after 2½ years of war are spending off-duty hours helping doctors and nurses care for 600 Ibo babies rushed to an abandoned maternity clinic here from vanquished Biafra.

The oil men, mostly British and American, see little chance of getting back into full production before summer, although they hope the refineries will be in operation again by late April. The original target date was February.

Before the war, Nigeria was ranked eighth in the world as an oil producer. Seismographic crews, already sizing up new fields for drilling, think the nation, with its vast swamplands and offshore oilfields, can climb even higher on the list.

The three main refineries at Amadi, Port Harcourt and Bonny have not been in operation since federal troops recaptured the area nearly two years ago and the Biafrans took off into the bush with key parts to the operating equipment.

Aside from attacking outlying pumping stations to keep the wells from pumping, the Biafrans did relatively little damage to the oil facilities in the river delta area. They bombed the tank farms and freely tapped into the 187-mile long trans-Nigerian pipeline for their own use, but were careful not to destroy any essential equipment in case they fought their way back.

Several of the oilmen complained they had suffered from losses and setbacks from loot-ing by federal troops than at any time during the hostilities. Port Harcourt, like other oil towns around the world, rings with rich Texas draws and at night, from the Irish and Scottish contingent, fighting ballads and sad songs.

Most of the inland fields in the swampy Niger delta are leased by Nigeria for drilling to Shell BP and Anglo-Dutch Co. The offshore rigs, glowing at night against a backdrop of tall palm trees belong to Mobil and Gulf.

Safarp, the French company, had small leases in the tiny enclave that was Biafra. Their future is undetermined.

Contrary to Biafran propaganda, the richest fields in the delta are on lands populated by Rivers people, not Ibos.

Oilmen reported the huge field on the south side of the Imo River is back in production, and some of the wells on the north side which seismologists think may be even richer, have begun pumping.

During the war 11 oilmen were killed and 1818 captured by the Biafrans.

"But that is all behind us now," an oilman said. "They say the street lights are coming on again in town. One of these days, who knows, a nightclub might reopen."

State Redistrict Plan Back to Federal Court

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The Republican-drawn plan to re-chart the state's 41 congressional districts, which hurdled Democratic roadblocks in the legislature, headed today for the federal courts after approval by Gov. Rockefeller.

The courts will study whether the plan complies with the order for the legislature to draw up more equitable districts. The order stemmed from a U.S. Supreme Court ruling in a test case brought by David I. Wells, a Liberal party official, who had contended that the present districts were grossly misshapen and decidedly unequal in population.

Wells said he wasn't satisfied with the new plan either, and intended to challenge it.

"The new plan is unsatisfactory," he said. "It is obvious gerrymandering." He particularly objected to the division of Albany and Syracuse to form new districts.

Gov. Rockefeller signed the measure into law Friday without comment. He also signed an amendment that would change some district lines in Queens to the benefit of Seymour Halpern, the lone Republican congressman from New York City.

The governor's action highlighted an otherwise quiet day at the Capitol Friday. Both houses of the legislature are in recess until Monday.

The court had ordered the state to draw more equitable districts and to make the population of each as precisely equal as possible.

Republican architects said they succeeded to the extent of drawing districts that vary only 490 persons from the ideal of 409,324.

The plan alters the boundaries of all the state's congressional districts and ignores county and city lines.

Democratic leaders had objected to plan on the grounds that it would force four and possibly six Democratic congressmen out of office. Democrats now control the New York congressional delegation, 26-15.

The voting muscle of the Republican majority overcame Democrat opposition Thursday as the measure sailed through the legislature.

Democratic leaders said the plan would endanger the election chances of: Samuel Stratton of Amsterdam, who was forced into the same district with Republican Daniel Button of Albany; James M. Hanley of Syracuse, whose metropolitan district was divided and attached to two newly formed districts of rural and urban mix.

Allard Lowenstein and Lester Wolff, both of Nassau County, who lost Democratic neighborhoods and gained Republican areas.

Richard L. Ottinger of Westchester, whose district was stretched across the Hudson River to include part of Rockland County.

John M. Murphy of Staten Island, whose district was stripped of some Democratic areas in Brooklyn and replaced with others in that borough that are Republican.

Agent Is Charged In Chicago Trial

CHICAGO (UPI)—"Chicago Seven" defendant Rennie Davis testified Friday he believed an undercover policeman suggested that protesters "dynamite the Amphitheatre"—site of the Democratic National Convention.

The testimony came during a stormy session of the trial of seven men charged with conspiring to incite riots during the convention. Defendant David Dellinger called the prosecution judge the "chief prosecutor" and the wife of another defendant, scuffled with U.S. marshals.

Davis said he met Irwin Bock, an undercover police agent who infiltrated the group and later appeared as a prosecution witness, at an executive committee meeting shortly before the convention.

Davis said Bock showed him a weird contraption composed of a balloon, a glass tube and a piece of cloth. Bock told him, Davis said, that by computing the rate at which helium gas computing the wind velocity, the gadget could be sent aloft and made to fall "wherever you want it to."

"We can drop it on the International Amphitheatre if you want to," he quoted Bock. The melee erupted when U.S. District Judge Julius J. Hoffman ruled Davis' earlier testimony concerning the Vietnam War was irrelevant.

Defense attorneys said the defendants "came to Chicago to demonstrate peacefully about two overriding issues—war and racism. That's the heart of our defense."

Dellinger shouted that the judge was exhibiting "hypocrisy" and was acting as "chief prosecutor." Hoffman asked a marshal to make Dellinger sit down but the defendant kept shouting.

"The judge is inciting riots by asking the marshal to commit violence," he screamed.

"Oh yes, they like to strike women," defense attorney William Kunstler shouted. "We've seen it constantly here."

Government May Ban Some Vegetable Oils

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) is going to remove vegetable oils that have been treated with the toxic element bromide from the list of food substances generally recognized as safe.

In another action Friday, FDA's new commissioner, Dr. Charles C. Edwards, said the agency would yank suspicious products off the market without waiting for a scientific evaluation.

Brominated vegetable oils are used primarily in citrus-flavored soft drinks and also in ice cream and bakery products. The FDA said the oils caused heart damage in rats when given in high dosages, but no harmful effects have been found in man.

The FDA said food and drink manufacturers who use the oils to spread ingredients equally throughout a product will be asked to recommend human safety levels within six months.

The U.S. action followed Canada's much more severe move against vegetable oils, Canada's National Health and Welfare Minister John Munro announced that while use of oils could not be considered a health hazard, there is a safe level of daily intake for humans related to body weight.

Meanwhile, Edwards told 125 top aides that he had been ordered to make an intensive review of the list of food substances generally recognized as safe. He also said:

"The public health cannot be endangered for months or for years while we attempt to accumulate all of the scientific data needed for an absolute determination of safety or danger."

Therefore, we will sometimes make decisions to regulate out of commerce suspect products, on the basis of demonstrated doubt, and we will not regulate them back into society until science has allayed those doubts."

Edwards is a former management consultant and private surgeon. He is acting commissioner now and will take office as commissioner Feb. 1. He said his action philosophy "will avoid some of the mistakes of the past."

Brody's Price Tag: $5 Million So Far

HONOLULU (UPI)—Millionaire Michael James Brody said Friday he has given away $5 million since he announced he would spend his fortune for world peace.

Brody, 21, arrived in Hawaii to entertain at a concert by the Grateful Dead, a rock group.

The long-haired youth handed a $10 bill to an elderly man in a black suit who asked to borrow $1, then Brody turned his pockets inside out to show they were empty.

Brody, heir to a $25 million oleomargarine fortune, was asked at the airport how much money he has given away during the past two weeks. "About five mil," said the man who has vowed to use dollars to end the Vietnam War.

"We've got 200 million letters to answer," Brody added. His wife, Renee, nodded in agreement. Brody said 20,000 people have forged checks on his account in Scarsdale, N.Y., since he announced he was giving away his money.

The $5 million, Brody said, was "other people's money that they gave me to give away." He didn't explain.

"I don't know if you're for real," a reporter said to Brody. "I don't know either," Brody said.

Highland School Work To Start Next Month

By SHANE CROSBY

HIGHLAND
Officials of the Highland Central School district expect site work on the proposed $2.5-million elementary school to begin in mid-February, following Supreme Court rejection this week of claims that conflict of interest shaded the awarding of the site contract.

Meanwhile, A. F. Lehman of the Lehman Construction Company in Kingston said he will appeal the decision regarding the awarding of the contract to the Reberna Construction Company, that is owned by Raymond Costantino, son of Highland Board of Education member Joseph Costantino.

Lehman did not elaborate on his intentions to appeal the decision, handed down by Supreme Court Justice DeForest C. Pitt in Troy early this week. The school's attorney, Stewart Schantz said of the decision "It seems that the court has vindicated the efforts of the board of education in acting in the interests of the school district."

Lehman contended in his petition to the court that the relationship between the winning contractor and his father on the board of education amounted to conflict of interest, that the low bidder was not "a responsible bidder as required by law," and that a $50,000 bond submitted by the son was not satisfactory.

He asked the court to change the awarding of the contract to Lehman's firm, the second lowest bidder out of five, but Justice Pitt held that "... this court could not in any event direct the awarding of the contract to the petitioner (Lehman)."

"In doing so," said Justice Pitt, "the court would be usurping the power of this body by directing an affirmative course of action in a matter involving judgment, quite contrary to law."

Commenting on the fact that the Reberna Construction Co. owner is related to a member of the board of education, Justice Pitt declared "the fact ... does not invalidate the board's action." The justice said the absence of "some further factual showing indicative of impropriety, this relationship becomes immaterial."

A stay had been in effect during the petition proceedings, keeping the school from proceeding on the contract and the site work. Attorney Schantz asked that the state court order the Lehman company to post a bond for any future stays in the action, such as an appeal, because of what he termed possible increases in construction costs due to future delays.

Schantz said a one per cent per month increase could be expected if the project were to be delayed any further.

GERSHON KINGSLEY, whose First Moog Quartet will perform for the first time ever in a Jan. 30 concert, stands by the Moog, an instrument so mammoth it easily fills up an entire studio. Called the "most exciting musical instrument since the invention of the piano," the Moogis Kingsley's forte — and his "Music to Moog By" is the biggest selling disc put out by Audio-Fidelity Records.

Cool Hands at Composing for the Moog

The number of first-rate Moog arrangers and lyricists is not large at any time, so what are the odds against two of them turning up in one small Catskill town? Certainly great, if not incalculable. But, as living proof that such a happy conjunction of talent can occur, Woodstockers Anne Croswell and Gershon Kingsley have collaborated on a first time ever presentation.

Anne Croswell and Gershon Kingsley are, from start to finish, incontestably superior musical artists. They have a surprisingly warm ambience with the music of Broadway, and have just demonstrated interpretative greatness by reaching for the Moog.

An instrument of unparalleled virtuosity and flexibility, the Moog (pronounced like vogue) is being touted as where the future of music probably lies. And the Berlioz of the new movement may well be Gershon Kingsley, long a conductor of Broadway musicals, and now the man behind one of the sweetest cash-register ringers in years. Kingsley, who is presently building a new home on Overlook Mountain in Woodstock, has a big selling disc on the market these days in "Music to Moog By."

But when international producer Sol Hurok proposed to introduce Kingsley's First Moog Quartet in a first of its kind concert at Carnegie Hall, Kingsley got on the phone fast to Anne Croswell, his Glasco Turnpike neighbor in the art colony. Having made arrangements and presided over the orchestration for Anne's first show, he wanted lyricist Croswell to collaborate on the Hurok concert that would pioneer in music by presenting not just one moog—but four.

The Jan. 30 concert in Carnegie Hall will be composer Kingsley's first venture of its type, but New York music critics are already predicting that the booking of his First Moog Quartet will be a runaway success of electronic music covering the full sound spectrum.

For Anne Croswell, too, the collaboration on this music that has been hailed as today's hottest entertainment, was a new tact. She says she started simply and that it "kind of opened up." But it was a brand new field to be conquered, since her past credits had included the lyrics for "Ernest in Love," the stage musical based on Oscar Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest," and the songs for Vivien Leigh and others in "Tovarich," among other stage and TV productions.

That she conquered the Moog, whose virtuosity has beggled the minds of many, will be demonstrated when a number of the songs on which she and Kingsley collaborated will be played next Friday night in Carnegie Hall on

Saugerties Collection to National Antiques Show

The accumulation of four decades of travel and study, in a collection ranging from ship's bells to the jaw bone of a whale, from harpoons to cannons, from rare books about the sea to "ships in a bottle," will be exhibited by Karl Wede of Saugerties, at the 26th annual National Antiques Show this year. The show is slated in New York City at Madison Square Garden; will run for 10 days, beginning Feb. 20.

In addition to the Wede exhibition, the big show will boast selected dealers, collectors and connoisseurs. They'll be displaying a wide variety of items, from traditional antiques to heirloom jewelry, and from decorative accessories to small furniture.

The theme of the National Antiques Show for 1970 honors the 100th anniversary of the emergence of American Glass, an outgrowth of a new mode of painting on glass introduced by John La Farge at Harvard's Memorial Hall.

Many Side Shows

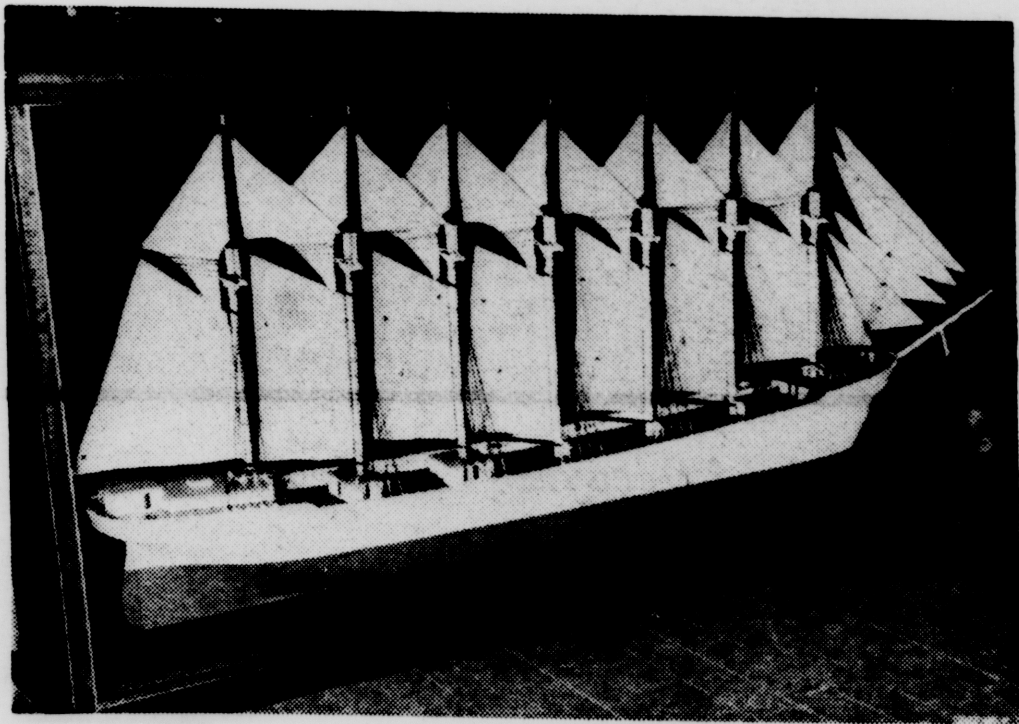

In addition, there will be selected side shows of rare stamps, blown glass shades, post card collections, early patent models, Staten Island Historical Society relics, and cigarette packs. Other attractions will include owl artifacts from the Sylvia Spence Collection, decorative Victorian hat pins, figural bottles, hobo art, and political memorabilia.

A Duncan Phyfe Corner will mark the 200th anniversary of the opening of this now historically famous designer's shop in New York. There will also be decorated model rooms designed by Edward Rosenberg p.m. Sundays and on closing for Sedra Studios, Leston and Duckworth, and Margot Gun-

VANDALS HAVE AUTOGRAPHED its shutters, but they still hang with a certain savoir faire from their elegant stone window frames. The shingles, however, have not fared so well; have been shorn from the long-sloped roof by time and the elements.

LEAFLESS VINES climb upward over the worn bluestone facade, sightless windows stare vacantly beyond their metal shutters, and only the louvers of the weatherbeaten but all-conquering cupola stand in mute testimony to a Victorian heritage that was far from quaint.

Study of a Building as a Haunting Relic

The special imaginative quality of these pictures by Freeman photographer Bob Haines evoke the mysterious and moving quality we have always felt this old building in Rondout possessed in a way particularly its own. Though it is not nearly so old (it has not yet reached 100) as other buildings in the Hudson Valley, it has long held a special appeal for us; is our own personal favorite piece of architecture in the area.

And though it is not nearly so grandiose as many a mansion that survives from the old days, or so stately as a City Hall or church, the portrait created by Haines' camera points up the miniature quaintness combined with Victorian elegance that has long made it attractive to our eyes. Many Tempo readers evidently hold it in high esteem, too, for we are often subjected to queries regarding its origin and history; questions often prefaced with the explanation that the tiny but rapidly decaying building holds a fascination for them.

Many people think of the building as "The Ghost of Rondout." But less than ghostly, it seems to us, it is a building that is set apart from all other old buildings in the county because of some special quality that lifts it far above the merely picturesque or hauntingly eerie. It is strange and fantastic and, perhaps, even "steamboat" Gothic rather than prudish Victorian.

Symbolically, it faces the Rondout Creek. For in the days this building saw burgeoning life, the waterway was the bearer of produce to and from our area, the path to the outer world, the means by which profit and power were realized here. It was the artery which tied the town to the cultures of New York City and Albany, and which brought tangible wealth to those who used it. It was also the source of all those things that made the art of living possible for those who lived beyond it.

And many people also think erroneously that from its one-room interior all barge traffic was directed up and down the Delaware and Hudson Canal, or that it had "something to do with early railroads." Photo-journalists who have published books on the Hudson have aided this myth by captioning their pictures of the building without research or wisdom.

Only to the extent that the building was involved in the bluestone industry did it have any relation to the traffic that came and went on the D&H Canal or on the rails that eventually replaced barges.

Built in Rondout's heyday in 1875, its one aim was to serve as the dispatch office for the William B. Fitch Stone Company. It has been said that Fitch owned the largest bluestone quarry in the world at a time when the stone industry was at its height in Ulster County.

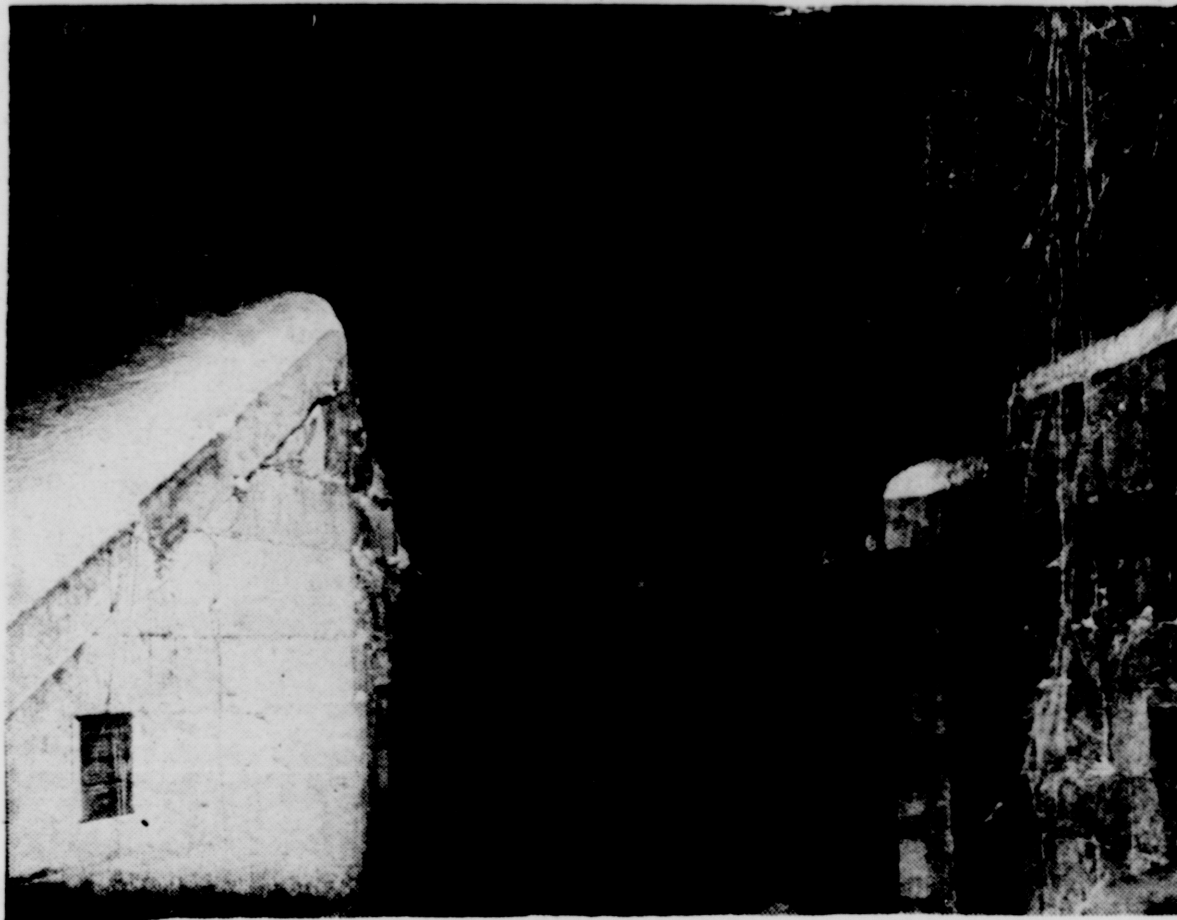

The quarry his workers mined was far from the banks of the Rondout in Old West Hurley. In the early part of this century, the man-made waters of Ashokan Reservoir erased it forever from the map. But at its peak, it produced stone that became the paving and curbstones for streets in New York, Boston, Baltimore and other cities. From the Old West Hurley mine, horse-drawn wagons groaned their creaking way down the Plank Road (now Route 28) to Kingston. Axles and wheels bending beneath the heavy loads, the wagons journeyed down Wilbur Avenue to creekside and the "modern new dispatch office." From there, the stone with the worldwide reputation was shipped down the Hudson to big eastern cities, or to western metropolises via the Lakes, or down the coast to southern states and Cuba.

Tons and tons of bluestone slabs left the then modern but now quaint and haunting building between 1875 and 1895. But the decline of the D & H Canal and the birth of railroads and the cement industry combined to relegate the little dispatch office to just another landmark along the Rondout in the Wilbur section of town.

UNINSPIRED GRAFFITI on padlocked door reads "Please Knock." But beyond this decaying entrance, in Rondout's heyday, the future of the sidewalks of New York (and Boston and Baltimore and many other metropolis) was handled with dispatch. Lighting the Night on a Bit of History

IT HAS BEEN MANY A LONG YEAR since a canal boat passed this way, but the scene evokes the ghosts of barge captains and canawlers of the past. And even more so by night than by day since the Delaware and Hudson Canal Society arranged for lights at the admirably preserved Lock 16 of the once busy, now abandoned canal. Visitors to the High Falls lock site these starry winter nights can admire a snow scene far more reminiscent of the 1860's than the 1970's. Put on your parka and drive down for a look. In the quiet stillness of a late January p.m., the sounds of revelry and hospitality from the nearby DePuy Tavern may just summon up voices of long gone canalmen celebrating at the end of the coal run over a glass of rum.

Four U. S. Commemoratives Set for 1970

By SYD KRONISH
AP Newsfeatures

Two states (Maine and South Carolina), the Pilgrim vessel Mayflower and an addition to the wildlife conservation series will be the subjects for four U.S. commemoratives in 1970.

The Maine stamp honors the 150th anniversary of its statehood. First under the jurisdiction of Massachusetts, Maine splintered off in 1820 to become the 23rd state in the union, and is now the largest in area of all England states.

The South Carolina adhesive hails the 300th anniversary of English settlement at Charles Town (Charleston)—the first permanent settlement in that state.

The 350th anniversary of the landing of the Mayflower will be marked with a new U.S. stamp this year. The 90-foot Mayflower with its 102 passengers arrived at Cape Cod on Nov. 21, 1620, but later put in at Plymouth.

The designs, dates and places of issuance will be reported in this column as soon as they become available from the Post Office Department.

The Netherlands has issued a new stamp to honor the 15th anniversary of the Statute for the Kingdom of the Netherlands signed by Queen Juliana at the Hague. The statute confirmed the new political relationship between the Netherlands, Surinam (formerly Dutch Guiana) and the Netherlands Antilles (a group of islands in the Caribbean Sea).

Featured on the new stamp is a portrait of Queen Juliana. In the background is a sunlit road, a symbol of solidarity. Surinam and the Netherlands Antilles also issued a stamp in the same design as a tribute to the anniversary.

In China, 1970 is the "Year of the Dog."

To commemorate this event, the Republic of China's newest stamps are two New Year's greetings items depicting Pekingese dogs, reports the World Wide Philatelic Agency. The Pekingese originated in China more than 1100 years ago.

In fact, in ancient China it is a well known fact that dogs were raised for carrying the mail among 15 postal stations in southern Manchuria. These were recognized as the famous "Dog Stations of China."

The Year of the Dog Stamps are available at your local stamp dealer or in the stamp departments of large stores throughout the nation.

The 12 animals which represent the months of the year on the Chinese calendar are: rat, ox, tiger, hare, dragon, snake, horse, sheep, monkey, rooster, dog and boar. It was the Year of the Rooster in 1969 and a stamp for this animal sign was issued then.

The largest and most valuable collection of British stamps in private hands will be sold by Stanley Gibbons Ltd. in London this February. This rare collection, formed over many years and contained in more than 100 volumes, is known as the "Maximus" collection.

The Maximus collection spans 130 years of British philately—from 1840 to the recent issues with the great strength in 19th century material.

THE MAIL BAG: To Mr. W. G. Granode of Jackson, Tenn., the difference in the 6-cent Roosevelt stamps is that one is issued in sheets and the other comes in coil form. The coil stamps are merely rolled in a coil like theatre tickets, for office use.

Come Cheer the Hero Or Hiss the Villain

Drama productions planned and drink beverages during the for the spring semester at Bennett College, Millbrook, will include a fairy tale, an old-fashioned melodrama, and a comedy by Shakespeare.

The fairy tale is Hans Christian Andersen's "The Snow Queen," to be presented Feb. 11-14 in Harkaway rehearsal room. Since the room seats a maximum of 45 persons, there will be eight performances, with a limited number of tickets available to the public. Reservations can be accepted only on or after Feb. 5.

The play will be performed in new and experimental form that includes audience participation. The action will take place around and through the audience, which at times will be asked to supply answers to questions that further the plot. Since the action will travel all around the room and be close to viewers at all times, younger members of the audience will be seated on the floor.

Old-Time Melodrama

Leland Price's "Parted on Her Wedding Morn, or She's More to Be Pitied Than Scorned" will be the melodrama, to be given 11 performances at Bennett Feb. 25-28 and March 5-7. This also will be performed to a limited audience in Harkaway rehearsal room, which will be set up as a cabaret. The audience will be seated at small tables, may buy performances, and is expected to cheer the hero and hiss the villain. Music and songs of the period will embellish the production, for which ticket reservations may be made on or after Feb. 19.

Shakespeare's "A Midsummer's Night's Dream" will be given at Bennett on May 7-9. This will be a full-scale production directed by John (Mike) McElhaney, chairman of the Drama department, and will be staged with elaborate costumes and scenery in Harkaway Theater, Mellon Center for the Arts.

As has now become traditional at Bennett, the Drama department will also sponsor a spring performance by the Herrick Marionettes. This will take place in Harkaway Theater on the morning of May 12.

When Rungs Pulled From Sleighs Were the Weapons

We have been reminded by the Hudson River Valley Association, now hatching plans for the upcoming New York State American Revolution Bicentennial celebration, that the "Battle of Golden Hill," called the first "battle" of the American Revolution, took place 200 years ago this week.

The Golden Hill confrontation occurred in New York City on Jan. 19, 1770—or two centuries ago this past Monday.

Five years earlier, a patriotic organization named the Sons of Liberty has been formed in opposition to the 1765 Stamp Act. Outraged when British redcoats cut down their Liberty Pole for the fourth time in early January, 1770, they called a public meeting at which it was resolved that British soldiers found on the streets after roll call "should be treated as enemies to the peace of the city." The morning after this resolution was announced, handbills which dared the people to enforce such a resolution were found posted around the city.

Broadside Started It

One soldier of a party found nailing this broadside at the Fly Market drew his bayonet; two soldiers were seized and taken to the mayor's house which was soon surrounded by more irate citizens. About twenty soldiers soon appeared with cutlasses and

CANNON FIRING DEMONSTRATIONS of the Revolutionary period are often featured at the New Windsor Cantonment, Vail's Gate. Many battles were fought with cannon during the war, but the first "battle," the "Battle of Golden Hill," was fought with bayonets, stones, clubs and rungs pulled from nearby sleighs. bayonets to demand release of their comrades. The mayor ordered them back to their barracks. Followed by citizens armed with stones, clubs and rungs pulled from nearby sleighs, the skirmish began when more soldiers appeared near the summit of Golden Hill in lower Manhattan.

Although many citizens and soldiers were badly wounded as bayonets slashed and clubs came down on heads, none were killed during this conflict. As more citizens gathered and outnumbered the soldiers the redcoats were forced to disperse. Soon after the "Battle of Golden Hill," which preceded the Boston Massacre by several weeks, the Sons of Liberty erected another Liberty Pole. It remained standing until the British captured New York City in October, 1776.

Authorities say that the hostility of patriotic citizens to British dictatorship at that time has given this event far greater significance than the degree of wounds suffered by participants. Walter Averill, a member of the New York Bicentennial Commission program committee, says that it is especially significant today. The vital role of New York State during the American Revolution and particularly that of the Hudson River valley where Continental soldiers faced British redcoats from 1776 until 1783 has never been adequately illustrated. Averill pointed out that this anniversary is a good alert signal to local groups as well as the commission in order that there be adequate coordination and preparation in advance of the coming American Revolution Bicentennial.

Flavor of Press Room In 'The Front Page'

Coming up on television this month is a hit comedy almost no one will want to miss.

It's the Plumstead Playhouse revival of the 1928 Ben Hecht-Charles MacArthur comedy, "The Front Page." And it'll air on WNEW-TV, Channel 5, Saturday, Jan. 31 from 8:30 to 10 p.m.

Specially produced for television, the comedy focuses on life in Chicago during prohibition. The TV version will boast a stellar cast headed by Robert Ryan, George Grizzard, Estelle Parsons, Susan Watson, John McGiver, and Vivian Vance. The TV play is almost a half hour shorter than the Broadway version, but the plot is unaltered. The skillfully created flavor of the press room remains intact, and the adaptation has lost none of its original charm. And charm it has in abundance, as exemplified by the fact that the longlived comedy has been popular and successful in revival after revival over the years. Robert Ryan, who heads the TV cast, and Helen Hayes brought it to Broadway again just this season to high critical acclaim.

That edition was a Plumstead Playhouse production, too. Plumstead is an exceptional company, headed by actress Martha Scott and a group of outstanding professional actors and actresses such as Ryan and Henry Fonda. Home-based on Long Island, it is an energetic and hopeful attempt to establish a national theatre in this country.

Study of a Building

Today, its long-sloped roof has been shorn of many of its shingles. Leafless vines entwine its bluestone facade like gaunt parasites and its grounds are so crowded with vegetation that in summer, it becomes almost swallowed up by its setting.

On a clear day, shards of broken window glass catch reflections from the trees and water, darkly green, as though with profound and mournful thoughts of the long ago. Sightless windows survey both creek and street, and the winds of winter whistle eerily through the louvers of the weatherbeaten but still jauntily soaring cupola.

With shutters askew on once elegant frames, broken stones festooning its walls, the iron work edging its roof rusting away, it is deserving of no other appellation except "ruin."

And ruin it is—a broken ruin, a cavity of nothingness—when the sunlight reveals dramatically and mercilessly the complete and sinister hollowiness it has achieved with time. For its deterioration must be blamed more on its obsolescence than on lack of love, the ravages of time, and the elements.

It was the habit in those days when the little dispatch office was a beehive of business activity for the men who prepared shipping manifests there while the stone was cut, sorted and readied for shipment in the dooryard outside, to stand at their desks when writing out the manifests. Originally constructed as a large, one-room building for simply "sheltering" the clerks, it outgrew its practicality for use because of its lack of facilities.

So a ruin it is and a ruin it remains. But when the sun does not expose its shortcomings so mercilessly . . . when the morning mists enshroud it with a fuzzy beauty, and the afternoon shadows endow it with a darkling grace, the ghosts of another day walk abroad again in its dooryard and make of it something less ghostly than compelling. Sometimes it seems to have an almost sartorial splendor; wears its decayed elegance with Savile Row aplomb. Perhaps it takes after the Fitch descendant who disdained the family bluestone business to seek his fortune in New York as a partner in Fifth Avenue's famed-for-its-expensive sports attire emporium, that celebrated department store of Abercrombie and Fitch. Cool Hands at Composing four moogs played by accomplished performers from every musical sphere. And they'll be backed up with additional live instrumentalists and singers for an experience in musical versatility the like of which Manhattan has never seen.

"Switched On Bach" is probably the most familiar Moog album to most record collectors and listeners. But when the electronic music of the creative Gershon Kingsley and Anne Crosswell gets a hearing next week, their Moog interpretations may well be hailed as even more exciting. In tidal waves of sound and new sensations, such Kingsley Crosswell songs as "A World of Yes," "Images," "Did You Ever Take a Journey?" "Rebirth," and "Save a Little Love for Yourself" will resound through Carnegie Hall.

The two collaborators did all the work on the songs in Woodstock: seemingly encountered few problems, if any. But they have worked well together ever since composer Gershon arranged and orchestrated Anne's lyrics 10 years ago for "Ernest in Love." One of the new Moog indigo songs—the one titled "Images," was originally written as a theme for the Kodak Pavilion at the 1970 Japanese Expo; has been turned into a popular song by putting Anne's words to Gershon's music.

A record album will definitely come out of the Carnegie concert under the Audio-Fidelity label, and a separate album is planned later, as are a series of rock anthems, by the Woodstock collaborators.

A veteran at the task of putting musical words into the mouths of Broadway play characters, Anne Crosswell found writing for the Moog was writing that was very much out of her normal field.

Moog music, she says, is not strictly for people to sing by as characters in a show. She found it not only different, but a new sound for now . . . and fun to be involved with.

Sitting in her huge living room, dominated by a mammoth piano and paintings, sipping coffee and making a serious face, she told us at her ease this week that the Moog is also fun to watch in action. Bathed in psychedelic lighting effects, it makes an awesome picture as it fills a whole room. Duplicating nearly all sounds, the electronic marvel boasts thousands of miniature solid-state circuits controlled by a simple keyboard. Orchestral instruments are reproduced, along with animal and natural sounds.

Kingsley, who is considered an expert as well as a creative genius of Moog, has two albums on the market; believes with a burning conviction that the Moog is an art form.

In spite of their long association, the new team of Crosswell and Kingsley had never written together before. But after the Carnegie concert, they may both be proclaiming, "Long live the Moog!" For the concert will be one of the most extraordinary and phenomenal ever given in the venerable Manhattan hall. It is aimed at illustrating just how extensive the Moog can be, from the classics to present day pop and rock. And when the program zeroes in on some of Kingsley's own works and those he did in collaboration with Anne, the psychedelic lights will spin, slides will roll by in the background, live instrumentalists will play and live singers will sing and the four Moogs will synthesize a McLuhanesque happening geared to go beyond the whole electronic movement.

Rare Book Reprinted

Out of print for 103 years, a rare historical book is being republished by a Middletown bookseller and publisher. The book in question is "A History of the Minisink Region and a General History of the First Settlement of Orange County, N. Y."

It originally appeared in 1867; was written by Charles Stickney, a noted historian at the time; and is now being reissued by T. Emmett Henderson, antiquarian bookseller and publisher, 130 West Main Street, Middletown. It is the second rare old book to be revived by Henderson in the past few months.

Until now the 211-page definitive book on the first settlement and subsequent history of Orange County has been a collector's item. As it stood, it was rich in factual material about the Revolutionary War and the French and Indian War, and was also considered a gold mine for genealogists. Henderson has further improved on the original by correcting one of its imperfections—the lack of an index. Painstakingly, he indexed the book himself.

Index Added

With the exception of Henderson's index, the book will be a faithful facsimile of the original edition, including the binding which will be a similar hard cover maroon cloth. The book will be on the market in February.

"A History of the Minisink Region and a General History of the First Settlement of Orange County, N. Y." follows Pike, closely on the heels of Eager's "History of Orange County," the first book republished by Henderson last year. That, too, was a hard cover reprint and it has been received enthusiastically throughout the country. Both books have been cited by Wright Howes, a leading authority on Americana, as significant books in the fields of history and heritage.

Debut for Kirstian

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Kristian Holand, who plays Bill Bixby's secretary in "The Courtship of Eddie's Father," will make her movie debut in MGM's "The Strawberry Statement."

'A Kid's Eye View'

Art Linkletter will escort a group of youngsters in "A Kid's Eye View of Washington, D.C.," a one-hour special to be telecast June 20. They will visit the historic spots in the capital.

Scott Signed

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—George C. Scott was signed by Universal Pictures to co-star with Joanne Woodward in "They Might Be Giants" filming in New York.

Film on Pike

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Producer William Orr and director Ted Post have formed a company to produce a movie titled "Pike," based on the life of the late Bishop James A. Pike.

S.O.S. to Woodstock Artists

Downtown Manhattan's Walcott-Fields Gallery, at 14 Fifth Avenue, will open its 1970 season with an exhibition of work by Woodstock artists. The show will benefit the Woodstock Artists Association.

This week, the gallery sent out an SOS to those artists who had agreed to participate. They were reminded that all work should be delivered to the Woodstock School of Art, Millstream Road, no later than Feb. 9 at 12 noon.

Long-time Woodstocker Pauline Fields (Luloff), new director and co-owner of the Walcott-Fields Gallery, has scheduled the all-Woodstock show from Feb. 14 to March 1. A gala preview reception will be held Saturday, Feb. 14 from 4 to 7 p.m.

Following the preview, the gallery will be open for the Woodstock show on a daily basis, including Saturday and Sunday from 2 to 9 p.m.

Ceramics Again

Woodstock's ever active Guild of Craftsmen has just announced a new series of classes in that always popular course, ceramics.

Sessions will be conducted by Philip Bresler, an expert professional in the art of ceramics, at his studio on Larson Lane in the art colony.

Classes will get underway Tuesday, Jan. 27 at 7:30 p.m. For further information, or to register, those interested should call the Woodstock Guild of Craftsmen.

Crucifixion Special

NEW YORK (UPI)—Van Heflin and Ed Begley head the cast of "Neither Are We Enemies," a 90-minute television drama by Henry Denker to be aired March 13 by NBC as a "Hallmark Hall of Fame" special. Set at the time of Christ's crucifixion, the story deals with the differing views of Joseph of Arimathea, in whose tomb Christ was buried, and his son, Jonathan, a young revolutionary, as to the proper way to throw off the Roman yoke. Heflin plays Joseph, and Begley has the role of a Jewish politician who exchanges favors with the Romans.

Killy in Ski Series

CBS will present a skiing series Sunday afternoons beginning Feb. 1 in which Olympic champion Jean-Claude Killy of France will face leading skiers on courses in various parts of the United States. Each week's winner will get $10,000.

Tempo Mini-Reviews New Series' Debuts

LUCIE ARNAZ, who's been appearing on her mother's show for two years now, finds her parts are getting bigger and bigger. Her mother, of course, is Lucille Ball. In addition to making her presence felt on mom's show, Lucie, now 18, has announced that she will marry 23-year-old Phil Vandevort, an actor.

DICK CAVETT — The man who IS the p. m. talk-music-variety five-a-week ABC offering that has the critics and public oooh-ing and aaah-ing. The night time show airs at 11:30 on the network. And who but Dick, when asked to describe the ideal guest, would say he thought it would be a combination of John Wayne and Oscar Wilde, "a man who could kill Apaches with epigrams."

NANNY AND THE PROFESSOR, Wednesdays at 7:30 p.m. on ABC. The Nanny is Juliet Mills (daughter of John and sister of Hayley), a lovely English lady with all the fey qualities of a Mary Poppins, from whence she certainly evolved. The Professor is Richard Long, a widower (we're not convinced we needed yet another one) with three children who are precocious enough to have used up five housekeepers in one year. In addition, there's a dog, an old English Sheep dog, who probably evolved from "Please Don't Eat the Daisies" and dozens of other shows we could mention. The Professor is about to go kooky when Nanny pops in, from England, completely unexpected and completely equipped to "spiff sputt" the house, children and animal. All things considered, the debut was rather enjoyable with good series potential, if you can stick it out with another widower and his children.

THE JOHNNY CASH SHOW, Wednesdays at 9 p.m. on ABC. If there is a sure thing in TV, it's the success that will attend this show. The infectious personality of the show business phenomenon doesn't overpower or overwhelm. It sort of surrounds you in the singing style, the smiles that occasionally shoot out of the lined face, and the rare burst of movement. Look for this series to settle down mainly to the Cash "family," even though Johnny offered variety with Arlo Guthrie, Jose Feliciano and Bobbie Gentry on the premiere. Regulars on the show will eventually shoulder the entertainment burden, including Carl Perkins, The Tennessee Three, the Statler Brothers and Mother Maybelle and the Carter Family.

THE ENGELBERT HUMPERDINCK SHOW, Wednesdays at 10 p.m. on ABC. Over and over we heard in advance that this show would be nothing like "This Is Tom Jones." And we heard right. The pace is far slower on the Huperdinck happening, with far less of the frenzy vocally and in scenic design. The star moves slowly, perhaps still feeling his way around the TV setting, or perhaps purposely posed that way. Best thing about the premiere was guest Tony Bennett, who gave one of his best TV performances singing "What the World Needs Now." Donald O'Connor and Leslie Uggams added as much to the proceedings as did Engelbert himself.

THE PAT PAULSEN HALF A COMEDY HOUR, Thursdays at 7:30 p.m. on ABC. This show gives the funny, beagle-faced humorist his own series, the result of a special which hasn't yet aired, but which so delighted ABC execs they wanted him to do an hour-long series. But he didn't want to mix music with the comedy, so they settled for "half a comedy hour." Pat will develop a stock company of characters and play them in skits. In the premiere, as a former presidential candidate, he talked to another former presidential candidate, Hubert Humphrey, and the scene was filmed in very cold weather, for which HHH was prepared and Pat wasn't. He also played a kindly warden to Debbie Reynolds' prisoner and had Daffy Duck in for a cartooned visit.

PARIS 7000, Thursdays at 10 p.m. on ABC. This new series has possibilities. George Hamilton stars as an American Embassy attache in Paris who helps Americans. All to the good for the first episode was the presence of E. G. Marshall, who was excellent as a newly appointed Supreme Court Justice who arrived in Paris with his loving wife (Anne Baxter) and found himself being blackmailed over a daughter he didn't know he had, born to a woman he loved during the war. Pamela McMyler made a memorable waif as the girl who could be Marshall's daughter, and the climax was moving. (T. G.)

Did Custer Die for Your Sins?

The intensifying battle between the American Indian population and the federal government — currently centering on the question of U.S. policy on the country's 52 billion acres of reservations—will be examined on "The Advocates," Sunday, Jan. 25 at 10 p.m. on Channels 13 and 17.

Principal guest will be Congressman Sam Steiger (R. Ariz.) who is said to have more Indians in his constituency than any other member of the House. He is a member of the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs and of its subcommittee on Indian affairs, which have authority over appropriations ultimately made to reservation Indians.

The specific question of the debate will be: "Should Indian reservations be continued indefinitely?"

They Charge Treachery

Government relations with the Indians, according to most Indians and most observers, has been marked historically by treachery, paternalism or outright annihilation.

It is estimated that there are now as many as a million Indians in the U.S., some 400,000 of them living in 315 tribal groups on reservation in 26 states.

Recently the cry of "Indian Power" has grown, and Indian organizations have adopted some of the methods of the age of protest in seeking what they feel is theirs. After Interior Secretary Walter Hickel told the National Congress of American Indians that the U.S. was "over-protective" of Indian rights, "Impeach Hickel" bumper stickers began to appear. Other emotional slogans now include, "Indians Discovered America," "Custer Had It Coming" and "Red Power."

The Indian position, as stated by Vine Deloria Jr., a Standing Rock Sioux, spokesman for the Indians and author of "Custer Died for Your Sins," is: Life expectancy of the reservation Indian is only 46 years; average income is just over $1,500; housing is generally substandard; the reservations are all that remain of the continent Indians once "owned;" and "Indians are determined to fight for every handful of dust that remains."

Bureau of Indian Affairs Commissioner Louis Bruce has pointed out that in the 1970 fiscal year some $500 million in federal funds will go to aiding Indians, with at least half of these funds coming from outside his bureau.

Around the World in Ninety Minutes

TINA YUAN of Taiwan will perform the famous Chinese Ribbon Dance during "Around the World in 90 Minutes," an evening of entertainment at Saugerties High School auditorium on Saturday, Feb. 7. The talented dancer is a member of the international troupe of artists slated to present "World" for the Saugerties Organ Fund Committee. The evening will highlight an exciting potpourri of music, dance and songs from all corners of the globe. Lively performance will be staged by excellent troupe of singers, dancers and musicians from New York City's famed International House. Tickets will be available shortly for the event which will take to the SHS stage Feb. 7 at 7:30 p.m.

Full House Guaranteed for 'Girl'

From Coach House Players this week comes the news that rehearsals are progressing at a brisk pace in preparation for Neil Simon's comedy hit, "The Star Spangled Girl." That's the big fun show the Coach Housers will be presenting here at the J. Watson Bailey School on Feb. 26, 27 and 28.

Early reports would seem to indicate that director Steve Krosner has a hit on his hands. Director Krosner and featured actors are putting their best efforts into "Girl," as are many other Coach House members whose work will help to insure the success of the production. Among them: Bud Gardner, Ray Caddy and Willard Thomas, busy preparing the sets; Josephine Thayer, Dotty Scholl, Mary Becker and Betty Madonna, in charge of props; and Bill Hawk, handling the players' program.

A major reason for the optimism surrounding "Girl" is that this year season ticket sales (associate memberships) are at an all-time high with more than 1,000 season tickets sold last fall. That's one of the main reasons Coach Housers are working so hard, knowing their efforts will be greeted with a full house.

A Treat for All

Obviously, a treat is in store for any and all playgoers who join the audiences at the Bailey School to see "The Star Spangled Girl." This is the show that ran for more than eight months on Broadway to the acclaim of critics who hailed playwright Simon for his unfaltering talent at generating bright, comic lines and zany situations.

The play's story gives us two earnest young men struggling against both society and financial hardship to publish a small magazine of social protest. Along the way, romantic entanglements ensue when a beautiful and patriotic girl moves in next door.

Tickets for "Girl" are $2.50 each and may be obtained by sending a check to the Coach House Players, 12 Augusta Street, Kingston. Part of the proceeds of this play, as all others, go toward the theatrical group's scholarship fund, assuring the award of a scholarship annually to an area high school graduate who has demonstrated a proficiency in one of the Arts.

"YOUR SHIELD OF SECURITY"

COUNTRY-WESTERN STAR Johnny Cash, backed by drummer and electric guitarist, appears in "Johnny Cash—The Man, His World, His Music," a documentary that takes him through some 40 numbers. Excellent entertainment fare, the film is now playing at New Paltz Cinema.

ANTHONY QUINN stars in "The Secret of Santa Vittoria," a tale of World War II in which the villagers of a little Italian town cope with Nazi intruders who want to confiscate their treasured wine. The film is the current attraction at Kingston's Mayfair Theatre.

MOVIES

The Secret of Santa Vittoria

Robert Crichton's best-seller comes to the screen with the vitality and picturesque drama that characterizes the novel, in this film now playing at Walter Reade's local Mayfair Theatre.

In the general excitement after Mussolini's downfall, the little wine-making town of Santa Vittoria, Italy, drives the local Fascists from office and by a fluke, hard-drinking, clownish Bombolini (Anthony Quinn) is appointed mayor. Faced with a Nazi occupation in some 40 hours and confiscation of a million bottles of wine—the town's one source of revenue—the bumbling mayor suddenly becomes a resourceful leader.

Under his direction the townspeople cooperate in the Herculean task of hiding their "life blood" with a spectacular show of peasant cunning and determination. Enemy questioning as to the whereabouts of the wine is met with amusing mock guileless innocence until the mood darkens when the Nazis resort to torture.

Anthony Quinn plays a role that might have been created for him; Anna Magnani, as his wife, is a true virago; Hardy Kruger is the duty-driven Nazi captain; Virna Lisi is the countess who reluctantly gives him her all to divert him from her lover and the wine.

Filmed in an Italian hill town, the weather-beaten villagers add authenticity in the earthy, heart-warming battle of wits and wills. It's rated by the film industry as entertainment fare for adults, mature young people, and young people.

The Sterile Cuckoo

In "The Sterile Cuckoo," now playing at Catskill's Community Theatre, Pookie (Liza Minnelli) has grown up unloved by a stern father who blames her for her mother's death when she was born. Now, as a college freshman, she's a brash, unpredictable gamine, given to too much chatter to cover her fears.

She rejects before she can be rejected, calls all her contemporaries "Weirdos," and is obsessed with loneliness and fantasies. When she meets Jerry (Wendell Burton), a nice, square, serious freshman at a nearby college she swamps him with words, but eventually her wacky persistence captures his amused affection.

In their awkward and self-conscious first love, both funny and sad, Pookie withdraws more and more into their relationship. But Jerry's interests and friendships are expanding, and gradual disenchantment sets in.

The always honest, sometimes painful story is told with an insight that is a tribute to director Alan Pakula, to young Wendell Burton and especially to Liza Minnelli, who gives an exceptionally sensitive performance.

Alice's Restaurant

Now showing at Kingston's Community, Saugerties' Orpheum and Red Hook's Lyceum, "Alice's Restaurant" offers its Thanksgiving feast currently at all three theatres.

No short order film, "Restaurant" was young folksinger Arlo Guthrie describing a commune in Massachusetts where wandering hippies are welcomed to pursue an uncommitted life. Funny and sad is the movie based on Arlo's best selling ballad "The Alice's Restaurant Massacre."

As in the song, which has been expanded into a full length film, Arlo, playing himself, roams the countryside, engaged in the usual search for identity. He begins to find it with Alice and Ray, who live in a former church in a Massachusetts town which they head as a commune for wandering flower children.

A sumptuous Thanksgiving feast, an arrest for littering, and lots of spoofing of the Establishment hold the story together with humor as Arlo attempts to find his thing in life.

Johnny Cash — The Man, His World, His Music

Very good is this pop-music documentary which rides on a triple-breaking crest: the emergence of Johnny Cash as a major country-western star (one who has his own network TV series); the rise of Cash's school of music on national record charts, and the recent popularity of this type of non-fiction film ("Don't Look Back," which focused on Bob Dylan, and "Monterey Pop," which highlighted a major rock festival).

The film takes great advantage of the singer-audience-society inter-relationship that Nashville-oriented music, more so than other types, generates. There are blessedly brief interviews with Cash. But there are many engaging performances by the star against the wide variety of backgrounds he utilizes in concerts—prison appearances before responsive inmates, on the Grand Ol' Opry circuit in halls and outdoor arenas, and on Indian reservations.

The film is consistently ingratiating, but the Indian segments are pure art with effectively understated poignance. Cash tours a South Dakota village where Indian victims of cavalry raids rest in a mass graveyard, in a restrained scene that makes a quiet, sober and effective point. Later, Cash is shown at home performing a ballad he composed on the theme.

The camera is used slowly, literally and unobtrusively in this documentary and it seems totally appropriate to the honest simplicity of Cash's music and his region: The Nashville sound abounds in roughly 40 numbers spaced through the film; there's a scene in which Cash visits his birthplace; and there are appearances by singers June Carter, Bob Dylan and others. The color is first-rate and all aspects of the film mesh artistically to make it atmospheric, evocative and touching . . . proving that much can be done on a limited budget.

It's the current attraction at New Paltz Cinema.

LIZA MINNELLI plays dead for her photographer friend, Wendell Burton, in an old graveyard. Scene is from "The Sterile Cuckoo," an appealing story of first love and the current attraction at the Community Theatre in Catskill.

VERNA BLOOM is one of the most talented newcomers to films in recent years. She excels as an Appalachian school teacher transplanted to riot-torn Chicago during the Democratic Convention in "Medium Cool." The stunning and moving film will be back for a rerun at Woodstock's Tinker Street Cinema from Sunday through Tuesday.

'With Mayor Lindsay' Returns to Channel 5

Mayor John V. Lindsay has returned as host and moderator of his own weekly interview and audience participation program on WNEW-TV, Channel 5, in New York. The program entitled "With Mayor Lindsay" is now seen in prime time each Sunday, in color, from 10:30-11 p.m. The show kicked off last Sunday, Jan. 18.

Each show will be taped only a few hours before air time at WNEW-TV's studios in Manhattan.

The format of the program is similar to last year's consisting of a four or five minute commentary by the Mayor on timely local events or governmental developments of public interest and concern; guests from the government and other fields and questions from the studio audience.

POTPOURRI

By JOAN WOINOSKI

Either there was a tremendous crowd at Dutch Rathskeller Saturday night or diners moved around so fast we counted some people twice. Kingston's avid diner-outers Reynolds Carr and missus were there; but then, they're in a league by themselves—they eat out seven nights a week. Mr. and Mrs. C. are pleased as punch 'bout daughter Mary Elizabeth who is now school principal and expected home this weekend for brief visit.

Organist Billy Dunn's back at the keys again, fully recovered from car crash and, if possible, better than ever — physically and musically. Bill and Renn have a common forte—the organ. And wouldn't Rathskeller faithful be stunned to see Renn fillin' in when Bill vacations? Renn may talk like Humphrey Bogart but he's really an ole sofie; and when his wife speaks 'bout "talented, clean-cut Billy," she sheds sunlight all over the place. To hear them both, you'd think Bill was a direct descendant (he even has a room and key to their pad, but we understand the feelin' is mutual.

Speaking of Renn's home at 1 Pearl Street, it's quite an historic landmark; 101 years old and boasting steps upon which New York Gov. Hill gave his acceptance speech many eons ago. And come April 1, that highly-respected Carr Funeral Home will celebrate—if funeral homes do in truth celebrate—one-half century of serving the public. Someone suggested Renn adopt a new motto for funeral home, "When you have to go, why not go by car(r)?"

Seats were so scarce, it became necessary at times for patrons to share organ bench with Bill or maybe they planned it that way. Patrolman Frank Kenneally and Mary were showing their pearly whites as were UCCC coach Mike Perry; Anne and Len Sickler Jr.; Bill Curran, talking sports with Lake Placid ski jumping instructor John Viscomie—who also handles affairs for songstress Kate Smith—was trying to impress upon his audience, "If your child can ski jump, he might be eligible for a college scholarship." Seems that if one learned the art at tender age and played his cards right, he could have a bonanza. Some people DO like to do it themselves, you know; not everybody's depending on Michael James Brody Jr.

If you were among the missing at Lillian Gish Special in Community Theatre last week, it was your loss. Those who made it got to know what great is. Teenagers were taken by Charlie Chaplin's antics; their mothers by romantic Rudolph Valentino. Spotted Irma Duncan, Eunice Mentessi, Dianne Norton, Pete Mills, Len and Lenore Cane, Rita and Rita-Mary Senor, Ann Breuer of Off-Beat Boutique who knows a good thing when she sees it and makes a point of being where the action is. Theatre buff Bill Hawk, finding it difficult to restrain himself, could be heard shouting "Bravo, Bravo!" It was all quite quaint. When those oldtime stars did their daring deeds, they used no stand-ins; rather like playing Russian Roulette with real bullets. By comparison, today's films shure ain't what they used to be.

dale Theatre now is this James Bond opus, best and biggest and most spectacular 007 adventure epic yet. Replacing Sean Connery, George Lazenby is the new Bond and, in this film, he gets married to Diana Rigg, known to her TV fans as Emma Peel of "The Avengers."

TRUE GRIT. Playing tonight only at Woodstock's Tinker Street Cinema is this Western based on the great novel by Charles Portis. Totally enjoyable, it stars John Wayne, Glen Campbell and Kim Darby.

MEDIUM COOL. Taking over the screen at Woodstock's Tinker Street Cinema for a rerun from Sunday through Tuesday is this film, written, photographed and directed by Haskell Wexler. It's a stunning and moving combination documentary combining the real Democratic National Convention street confrontation, and the fictional love story of a television newsreel cameraman and an Appalachian school-teacher trying to raise her son in the Chicago ghetto. Superlative performances by Robert Forster and Verna Bloom.

EASY RIDER. Ending up a long, long run at Hyde Park's Roosevelt Theatre is this movie which will move on by the middle of next week in all probability. Excellent acting jobs turned in by Peter Fonda, Dennis Hopper and Jack Nicholson. All about two motorcyclists on a cross-country trip trying to find out what The Establishment is all about. (By TOBIE GEERTSEMA)

GEORGE LAZENBY is the new James Bond in "On Her Majesty's Secret Service," the new James Bond film with wall-to-wall excitement. It's now showing at the Rosendale Theatre.

UCCC Continuing Education...

Broad in Scope, Many Functions

STONE RIDGE
The Continuing Education program at Ulster County Community College has the purpose of giving area residents with family and job responsibilities the opportunity to pursue their education on a part-time basis. It is sufficiently broad in scope to meet the needs of students who may vary widely in age, background and educational purpose.

A wide range of functions are served by the Continuing Education program. It provides opportunities for people who wish to resume or accelerate their formal education, update their training or professional skills, overcome educational deficiencies, broaden their cultural and intellectual horizons and aspirations, prepare for licensing examinations, learn supplemental skills, or acquire expertise in personal avocations. In addition, this program gives individuals a chance to promote self-development or broaden their understanding of present day cultural, social and economic problems.

Because Ulster County is spread out geographically, the college offers Continuing Education classes at several strategic locations in order to bring its educational programs closer to the people. These courses are offered at the college's Stone Ridge campus and at extension centers in Kingston, Saugerties, Woodstock and Ellenville.

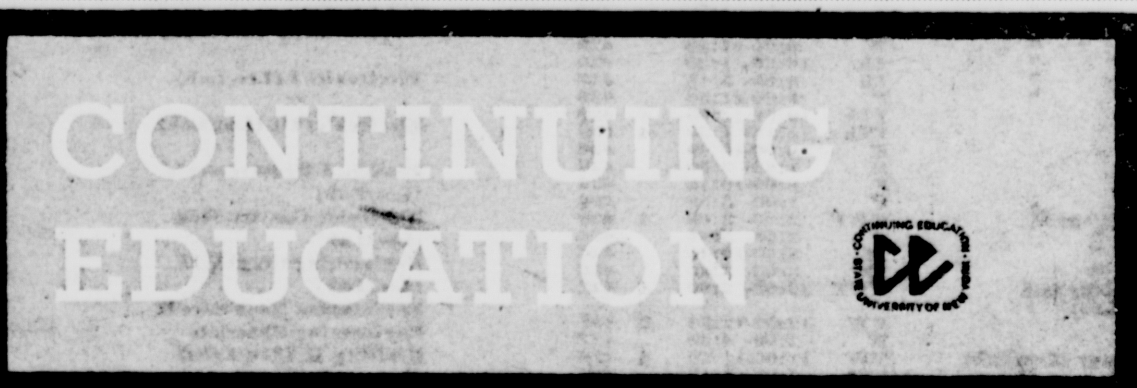

Interested persons can, through the Continuing Education program, work toward a two-year college degree. Mature adults wishing to take these courses without credit can do so by auditing them.

In addition to offering credit courses, the Continuing Education program provides special non-credit courses, seminars and workshops for residents of the community.

These offerings have included courses for insurance personnel, emergency care and rescue courses for ambulance squad volunteers, income tax workshops, courses in dental assisting, basic folk guitar, effective reading, a seminar on the abuse and misuse of drugs, seminars to update information for practicing attorneys and the local history workshop.

The college, through its Continuing Education office, offers professional leadership in planning, organizing, and providing instructional services to groups with common interests. The college stands ready to develop courses of study to fill the specific educational needs of groups in business, industry and the professions. These courses, which carry no credit, need not coincide with the regular academic schedule nor be of the same duration.

Anyone interested in further information regarding such courses should contact the Office of Continuing Education (687-7621).

English Instructor Known

FERNANDO VALDIVIA

Fernando Valdivia, of the English Department at UCCC, is well-known to "Freeman" readers for his photographs, many of which have appeared in "Tempo." Photography and creative writing are major interests of Valdivia's outside the classroom; inside the classroom, he is one of the college's liveliest and most interesting instructors.

A resident of Bearsville and former teacher at Onteora High School, he had a show of his photographs at the Woodstock Post Office last fall. During the recent intersession at the college, he toured Mexico with his wife Susan and daughter Gabrielle, and we may expect some exciting photographs to appear from Caldivia's darkroom as a result of that trip. He is also working on a scholarly paper which will present a new interpretation of "The Tempest," one of Shakespeare's most enigmatic works.

Like other faculty at UCCC, Valdivia gives his adult students special praise for their motivation, diligence and maturity, though he sometimes thinks they could benefit from some of the flexibility which typifies younger students. He enjoys a balance between daytime and evening classes, because he sees in them a tremendous range in ability and point of view. Some of his best students, he says, have been among the oldest, and he particularly mentions Mrs. Grace Sylvester, one of his creative writing students, who is a grandmother in her 70's.

Valdivia is keenly interested in two of the most vital college functions—development of relevant curriculum and college governance. He is currently serving as Vice Chairman of the Ulster County Faculty Organization, which includes the entire teaching and administrative staff of the college and serves in an advisory capacity to President George B. Erbstein.

Ulster Graduate Now City Teacher

Mrs. Beverly Jean Britting, the mother of three children, is a prime example of what part-time study at Ulster County Community College can lead.

She began as a part-time evening student at UCCC in September, 1964, when the college was located in temporary quarters in the old Ulster Academy Building at 214 West Chestnut Street in Kingston. Today as a culmination of her education she is a librarian for the No. 8 School and the Brigham School in the Kingston City Schools Consolidated System.

"The community college proved very helpful to me in starting work toward my degree in the evening," says Mrs. Brit-ting. "I started out as a part-time student in the fall of 1964, then switched over to being a full-time student during the daytime in the fall of 1966."

While at the college she was consistently on the Dean's List and was graduated with a two-year degree in June, 1967, when she was chosen by fellow graduates to speak for them at commencement.

She transferred to the State University College at New Paltz, where she finished her course work in August, 1968, and subsequently was graduated Summa Cum Laude with high honors.

"The academic work I took at the community college was fine preparation for my courses at New Paltz," she says, "and I always shall feel indebted to the faculty members I had at UCCC."

In the 1968-69 school year, Mrs. Britting was an English teacher at the J. Watson Bailey Junior High School in Kingston before switching over to become a librarian in the present school term. She currently is enrolled in a Master's degree program at the State University College at Albany and is taking courses for library certification.

She resides at 13 Plochman Lane, Woodstock, and is married to Charles R. Britting, a guidance counselor at Onteora Central School.

MRS. CHARLES BRITTING

Ex-Dropout Excels As Poetry Writer

JAMES CLARKE

James Clarke, instructor of English, was a college dropout from the age of 19 to 28. During the nine year period when he was out of school, he served overseas in the Army, was a Freedom Rider, a bricklayer, a dishwasher, a bouncer, a professional bowler. When he finally returned to formal education, he was readmitted to Union Junior College on probation and later transferred to Newark State Teachers College, where he was a Dean's List student. Subsequently, he became a teaching assistant at Indiana University and then received a Federal fellowship which enabled him to teach part-time at Fairleigh Dickinson University and to pursue his doctoral studies at New York University.

Clarke has been writing poetry since childhood and has won a number of poetry contests, including the Hallmark Poetry Prize. His book of poems, "Twenty-One Games," will be published shortly, and he is also the author of two children's books. His interest in the written work traces in part to the influence of his father, a well-known chemist, who in the 1920's was part of the Paris literary circle which included Ernest Hemingway and Ezra Pound.

Another long-standing hobby is snakes, and Clarke is a fellow of the American Reptile Society. He is also interested in fish, birds and lizards.

Although strict in grading, Clarke is almost universally popular with students at the College because he has had such a variety of travel and work experiences that he can understand most of the problems and pressures a student faces. He says that teaching at UCCC is the most enjoyable job he has ever had. He likes the ethic of a community college, he says, and thinks that a small college with a young faculty can provide both young and mature students with inspiration and incentive. Clarke serves as an evening counselor, and evening students are invited to avail themselves not only of his advice, but his enthusiasm.

The College and Age of Computers

The age of the computer has dawned, and Ulster County Community College is offering courses for those who want to be educationally prepared for it. The courses are offered through the Department of Data Processing, headed by Walter W. Bartlett, who has had extensive experience in the field of computers. Realizing that many full-time employed persons can't take these courses during the day, the college each semester offers some of these courses in the evening. For the Spring Semester, starting Feb. 2, UCCC will offer Introduction to Processing and Computer Mathematics on Wednesday evenings at its Stone Ridge campus. The college started its new program in Data Processing only last September.

"The response to our new program has been most gratifying," Bartlett said. "We limited enrollment in the program to 30 full-time students last fall in order to hold the number and size of classes within our present staff capabilities. The first course in our curriculum, an introductory course in computer-based data processing, had over 80 students enrolled last fall."

He says this first course also proved popular as a Continuing Education course with steadily increasing evening enrollments of 23, 30 and 42 respectively during the last three semesters.

"People who have taken the course in the evening include school teachers, school principals, computer operators, nurses, a man who wanted to do something instead of watch television, a man who wanted to automate his chicken farm and people who just wanted to learn something about data processing and computers in order to expand their knowledge and do their jobs better," Bartlett said.

Bartlett foresees a rising interest in this college program which can lead to a two-year degree.

"Every day we're getting more and more applications for the use of computers," he says, "and it is becoming necessary for more and more people to learn something about computers in order to function in their positions."

Bartlett has been working with computers since 1962, when only 3,000 to 4,000 computers were in operation. "Today there are about 100,000 computers in operation," he says. "We've come an awfully long way in the last eight years, and we'll go even further with computers in the next eight years."

Bartlett, who has extensive college teaching experience, received his B. S. degree in electrical engineering from Indiana Institute of Technology, and obtained an M. A. degree in mathematics from Ball State University in Indiana.

In addition, Bartlett has completed more than 45 credit hours in mathematics beyond his master's degree and has attended many seminars and workshops dealing with computers. He formerly was the assistant director of a computing center at Indiana Institute.

Mom of Seven UCCC Student

Mrs. Patricia Wootan, a student at UCCC, is one of those trim, vivacious women who look as though they should be on TV commercials. Wife of a physician in Kingston and mother of seven children, ranging in age from two through 10, she started at the college last summer because she wanted to be prepared for the time when all her children would be in school.

Her aim is a career as an active community-service professional, and to this end she will be taking nine credits of studies at the college for each semester during the next two years. When her youngest child enters school, she will become a full-time student herself, so that she can quickly reach her goal of active work, perhaps as a psychiatric social worker.

Right now, Mrs. Wootan attends college three days a week and relies to a large extent on a very dependable housekeeper. She was recently among the students at UCCC who appeared before the curriculum and instruction committee to support the introduction of a sensitivity training course at the college; such training, she feels, would be helpful to almost every member of the college community.

William L. Stark, an assistant professor of mathematics at Ulster County Community College, is highly impressed with most of the students he has had in his evening classes while teaching at the college.

"Generally I've found the students in my evening classes to be above average in interest and the desire to improve themselves," he says.

A college faculty member since 1967, he has taught at least one evening course each semester in addition to his day courses.

Professor Stark, presently working for his doctorate degree at the State University of New York at Albany, has had considerable experience in teaching adults of all ages, including Applied Mathematics and Nautical Science courses he formerly taught at the Merchant Marine School of Seaman's Church Institute in New York City.

He has a master's license in the Merchant Marine and when not teaching in the summer he has sailed around the world to far away places like South Africa, Vietnam and South America. His work in the Merchant Marine has required the use of applied mathematics, and this background has enabled him to present practical problems to the students taking his mathematics courses at UCCC.

Former New York City Police Lt. On Staff at Stone Ridge College

A former police lieutenant is teaching Police Science and Correctional Administration courses at Ulster County Community College.

He is Theodore E. Dietz, who had over 20 years' experience in the New York City Police Department, 19 of them in a supervisory capacity. His police career included assignments within ghetto areas, in middle class communities and in wealthy upper class enclaves to give him some measure of empathy toward all groups.

In addition to his day-time courses, he will teach three evening courses in the Spring Semester. They include Police Operations to be offered Tuesday nights at the Stone Ridge campus, Correction Supervision on Wednesday nights in Ellenville, and Police Administration on Thursday nights in Ellenville.

The two courses being offered in Ellenville are for the convenience of policemen in that area and for correction employees at the nearby Catskill Reformatory in Napanoch and Narcotics Rehabilitation Center in Woodbourne.

The college last September began its Police Science and Correction Administration programs, leading to two-year degrees. Among those now taking courses in these programs are area correction employees, local constables and representatives of the Kingston Police Department, Ellenville Police Department, Ulster County Sheriff's Office and the New York State Police.

Reading Course to Meet the Area Needs

To meet the increasing need many business and professional people have to improve their reading ability, the Office of Continuing Education at Ulster County Community College has offered a specialized non-credit reading course.

The course, "Effective Reading for Business and Pleasure," first was taught last fall by Edward F. Poenicke, a reading specialist, and will be offered again this spring.

A member of the International Reading Association, Poenicke teaches developmental and remedial reading at the Rondout Valley Central School.

He has a BS degree from Long Island University and a MS degree from the State University College at New Paltz, and has taken additional specialized graduate courses in this area at Syracuse University, the University of New Hampshire, and Marygrove College in Detroit.

He feels anyone taking this course can improve his or her rate of reading as well as reading comprehension. As an example, he points to the 14 persons — including engineers, teachers, housewives and businessmen — who took the course last fall.

"After only 20 hours of instruction these people made gains in their reading speed from 48 to 210 per cent," he says, "and also made notable improvements in their reading comprehension."

Poenicke sees the improvement of reading skill as vital in this day and age for businessmen and professional people who are faced with larger amounts of material to read to keep abreast of the latest developments in their respective fields.
